LINDBERGH FLIES OVER FAIRFIELD

FOUR BURNED FATALLY WHEN HOUSE BURNS

Mother Loses Life Trying To Save Three Children

PORT HURON, Mich., June 17.—Mrs. Stephen Malinske, 34, and her three children, Stephen, 11, Mary, 7, and an infant daughter were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home near here.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in a chicken brooder.

Mrs. Malinske lost her life in a vain attempt to rescue her children, who had been trapped in a bedroom.

The father escaped.

WILE SAYS:

Oppose Grew? Is Career Man Dawes Is Foe Other Angles

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Vice President Dawes' smashing attack on "career diplomats," in a commencement address at St. Louis, has converted the American foreign service personnel into an issue. The next congress is certain to deal with it. In all probability the occasion will be the nomination of Joseph C. Grew, now undersecretary of state, as United States ambassador to Turkey. Mr. Grew's appointment will come under fire, not merely because he is an outstanding "career diplomat," but because the forces that prevented ratification of the Lausanne treaty with Turkey last winter will contend that, without treaty relations, America should not send an envoy to Angora. Anti-administration elements holding this view talk of President Coolidge's "defiance" of the senate in naming a new, full-fledged ambassador, after the senate declined to sanction the pact with the Turks.

Mr. Grew is likely to be singled out in the "career diplomat" controversy because he, in a special degree, typifies the "career" man in our international organization. He has had a long and distinguished record abroad. Next month Grew will complete his twenty-third successive year in the foreign service. He began as a

FLASHES CONTINUE FROM WILDERNESS

QUEBEC, Que., June 17.— The mystery of the supposed flare signals reported to have been seen near St. Germain Twp., in the mountainous wilderness north of the Saguenay river was still unsolved today, but hope that they might have come from the missing French aviators, Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli has almost been abandoned.

Flashes were reported Sunday night, Tuesday night, Wednesday night and again last night.

Doubt is now expressed by supporters of the early theory that Nungesser and Coli were stranded in the northern part of Quebec Province: However, hope has not been abandoned entirely that the men may be found alive in the wilderness.

FIND LEPER CASE

MARTINS FERRY, O., June 17.—Officials here are baffled by what has been reported as a possible case of leprosy contracted by a Greek resident of this city. Federal experts from Washington will be asked from the public health service to confirm the diagnosis. Dr. Mahoney, of the state health department, has also been called here to examine the patient.

MASONS AT MEET

WILMINGTON, O., June 17.—The Knights Templar and Blue Lodge Masons of the second Ohio district, numbering 1,500 were here today for "Templar Field Day" at Wilmington College. Athletic events, a parade and a dance were program features. F. Oscar Schoedinger, fast commander for Ohio, was an official honor guest.

"GORILLA" MAY BE CLUBBER

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN CANADA THOUGHT TO BE OHIO SLAYER

Description Of Man Held In Oregon Also Tallies

WINNIPEG, M., June 17.—Chief of Detectives George Smith and Inspector Philip Stark stated positively today that the man arrested at Killarney yesterday and brought to Winnipeg by special train is the man they want for murdering two women here in Winnipeg.

They state further that from information supplied them by United States Detectives here, they are sure their prisoner is the "gorilla" wanted for at least twenty similar killings in the United States.

Earle Nelson, as he was registered at central police station, Winnipeg, says he was born at San Francisco. Earlier in the day he said he came originally from Lancaster, England, and never had been in the United States. Virgil Wilson was the name given a few hours earlier.

Nelson alias Wilson was apprehended Wednesday night by provincial police at Killarney, Manitoba. He was brought to Winnipeg under heavy guard.

Identification was made by W. E. Chandler, who recently reached Winnipeg after a motor trip from Detroit. Chandler said that on June 8 he had picked up the man five miles north of Warren, Minnesota, and brought him to Winnipeg. Other identification as to teeth marks on victims in the United States are said to be beyond refutation.

TOLEDO, O., June 17.—Police here today revived their hopes that the "clubber" who murdered five women here, and clubbed several others, may be in custody, and the murders may be cleared up, following reports that suspects are being held in Portland, Ore., and also in Winnepeg, Man.

A man giving the name of Adrian Harris, held as a "gorilla man" by Portland authorities, according to early reports to local police, apparently tallies with the meager descriptions available of the Toledo slayer.

Five women, who killings were never solved, were slain by the Toledo "clubber", during the past two years. They were Miss Lily Dale Croy, school teacher; Mrs. Mary Alden, 47, Miss Lydia Baumgartner; Mrs. Emma Hatfield; Mrs. Mary Hadley, 42. A score of suspects have been arrested and examined by police here at various times in connection with the killings, but no evidence was procured to connect any of them definitely with the killings.

BAD WEATHER STILL DELAYING TAKE OFF OF COMMANDER BYRD

Possible Naval Ace Will Not Leave Before Sunday

NEW YORK, June 17.—Bad weather continues to delay the hop off of Commander Richard E. Byrd in the monoplane America for Europe.

It seemed probable this morning that Byrd would not be able to get away before Sunday.

Byrd said he certainly would not take off today.

There are two zones of adverse weather—one of 800 miles in diameter southeast of Newfoundland and the other 1,000 miles west of Scotland, also covering a wide area.

James H. Scarr, local forecaster, said the unfavorable weather is not likely to clear up for two days.

The giant tri-motored Fokker plane is conditioned to go, except for the taking on of gasoline and food supplies which would require only a short time.

PICKFORD TARGET OF PLOT

WARNING FOILS PLANS TO KIDNAP ACTRESS

Home Of Movie Star Under Guard After Conspiracy Exposed—Douglas Fairbanks Guards Wife With Riot Gun

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—A heavily armed guard was stationed around the Beverly Hills home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks today as the result of an alleged plot to kidnap the diminutive actress and hold her for $100,000 ransom.

The guard was thrown around the Pickford estate when H. L. Brady of Palm Grove Ave., reported seeing three men following Miss Pickford. He said the movie star had been posing for street scenes and that when she left in her car, the three men followed in a large sedan.

Brady said as the men passed him he overheard one of them remark:

"There she goes. She'll be worth $100,000 to us."

Hollywood and Beverly Hills police were notified and a guard was immediately thrown around Pickfair, the movie star's home. As she rode home last night from the studio, Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, sat beside her with a riot gun in his lap. Several officers on motorcycles followed a short distance behind the car.

LINDBERGH RESCUED AVIATION FOR U. S. SAY ARMY AIR PILOTS

Flyers In Escort Party Awaiting Trans-Atlantic Ace At Fairfield Praise Youth Who Aroused Flying Interest

WITH LINDBERGH ARMY AIR ESCORT, ENROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, June 17.—"Lindy has rescued aviation in the United States." The war birds of America—those men who will fight the next war in the skies—paid this tribute today to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in recognition of his heroic conquest of the trans-Atlantic ether.

While awaiting a rendezvous with Lindbergh in the skies above Dayton, Ohio, the cream of America's army birdmen declared Lindbergh had awakened the conscience of the American people to the necessity for prompt development of both commercial and military aviation.

The army pilots who flew from Washington to New York with Lindbergh and who were to accompany him from Dayton to St. Louis were of single voice when it came to speaking of Lindy's feat. He put on one fine show, said one bronzed warrior of the skies and his comrades gathered around a mess table echoed "he sure did." To the army birdmen Lindbergh's feat came at a most opportune moment.

America first developed aviation they said and then allowed most of the great nations of the world to come along and surpass it in air strength. It was Lindy, they added, whose feat awakened the people to the necessity for a revival of aeronautics in America and the revival already has gotten under way.

"Lindy has given aviation a boost all over the country," observed Lieut. E. E. "Tiny" Harmon, who flew with the colonel in army air training camps.

"The biggest kick army pilots get out of his feat is the fact that he left New York knowing that if he did get across the ocean he would land in Paris after dark on a perfectly strange field.

"Knowing the danger of such an effort aside from getting over the ocean he just went ahead and did it. That's what gets the pilots. And he's helped aviation everywhere. I know two boys who bought a commercial plane the day before Lindy landed in Paris. They paid for it out of their receipts in three days. It's the same now with all commercial aviation. Lindy has rescued it."

The same sentiment was expressed by Captain Andrew W. Smith, the oldest flying flight surgeon in the army.

"We give him all the credit in the world," said Captain Smith. "Lindy's flight was the biggest boost ever given aviation in this country."

The army's air escort for Lindbergh concentrated at Dayton was composed of twenty-one fast pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, Michigan, six observation planes from Bolling Field, Washington and a half dozen other planes from Wright Field, Fairfield. The army flyers had a rendezvous with Lindbergh in the skies above Dayton for one o'clock, after which they planned to escort him into St. Louis. On his flight from New York to Dayton Lindy was expected to pass over Pittsburgh and Columbus, Ohio. From Dayton to St. Louis the army men planned to follow the national highway passing over Richmond, Greenfield, Indianapolis, Greencastle and Terre Haute, Ind., Marshall, Effingham, and Greenville, Illinois.

ITALY GIVES ROYAL WELCOME TO PINEDO AFTER HIS RETURN

World Flyer May Be Made Head Of Air Service

ROME, June 17.—All Italy is as enthusiastic over Commander Francesco De Pinedo as the United States is over Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

De Pinedo, who has arrived here after completing a four continent airplane flight, is mobbed wherever he appears in public, his admirers refusing to permit him to proceed about his business as he wishes.

The government is giving a great banquet tonight in De Pinedo's honor, when it is understood he will be officially advised of his appointment as chief of staff for aviation.

The Pope will receive the flyer tomorrow and is expected to confre a high honor upon him.

United States Ambassador Fletcher today sent a message to Premier Mussolini presenting the conand the American people on the gratulations of President Coolidge successful conclusion of De Pinedo's flight.

CHRONOLOGICAL FLIGHT STORY GIVEN LINDY

NEW YORK, June 17.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh carries back to St. Louis today a volume containing 150,000 words in dispatches by International News Service concerning his flight.

M. Koenigsberg, president of International News Service, presented the handsomely bound record of Lindbergh's exploit to him at Lindbergh's apartment last evening.

"This volume is a tribute to you, sir, to your character, your fine American manhood, your peerless courage and unequalled skill," said Mr. Koenigsberg.

"From the day you prepared in San Diego, to hop off for New York until the sun set last Monday upon New York's greatest day of celebration — everywhere you went were I. N. S. men.

"They watched you narrowly, with cold and disillusioned eyes, used to finding cracks in public idols. They looked for flaws in you. To their amazement they found none. They all love you.

"They wrote of you with freedom of reservation that I have not seen equalled in my time, and that is a tribute you may prize as coming from the hard-boiled, whose very business it is to be dispassionate and analytical."

Lindbergh replied:

"Reporters are hard-boiled all right."

He added quickly:

"But they certainly have co-operated with me. I guess they are only hard-boiled on the surface."

Mr. Koenigsberg told Lindbergh that no single individual ever caused so many words to be sent over press association wires within so short a space of time—a record that perhaps Lindbergh did not know he held. He told the famous flyer the volume was presented "out of gratitude to the maker of the perfect news story."

The volume contains an exact reproduction of the dispatches carried over International News Service wires, from the day Lindbergh hopped off from San Diego until his triumphal return to New York. It is entitled, "The Saga of Colonel Lindbergh."

THE COOLIDGES ARRIVE

Underwood and Underwood

The President and the first lady wave a smiling response from the observation platform of their special train to the cheering thousands who greeted them at Rapid City, S. D., where they deserted the railway line for a 30-mile drive to the State Game Lodge in the Black Hills, which is this year's summer White House.

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE VISIT STEAMER AND SURPRISE WIVES

Wives Overjoyed When Long Distance Flyers Join Them—Expect To Accompany Husbands On Rest Of Trip

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, June 17.—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic flyers, paid an early morning surprise visit to their wives today. Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine had arrived upon the liner Berlin which docked shortly before 1:30 o'clock, much earlier than had been expected. Immediately after the steamship had docked the two airmen went on board. As their wives had not expected them until after daylight both were in bed in their cabins.

The meeting was the result of a careful conspiracy, for Chamberlin and Levine had gone to bed in Bremen, announcing that they would greet their wives in the morning. After the crowds had dispersed the two flyers left their Bremen hotel and motored to Bremerhaven and boarded the Berlin.

"You poor darling," was Mrs. Chamberlin's greeting to her husband as he entered her stateroom.

"Oh, you wonderful boy," was the salutation of Mrs. Levine.

Then the doors slammed and the rest of the welcoming was a purely personal affair.

Later the two wives were officially welcomed on the bridge of the Berlin by the mayor of Bremen and American Consul General Hurst of Berlin. Then the photographers had their innings also and Chamberlin and Levine kissed their wives twenty-four times for the benefit of the photographers, doing an osculatory parade march to the tempo set by the ship's officers shouting, "one-two-three-kiss-one-two-three-kiss," with the cameras clicking on the word "kiss."

"Charles is wonderful," said Mrs. Levine in an interview. "You can write that in prose or poetry. He's wonderful. I fainted when he hopped off from New York but now I would gladly fly back with him!"

"I can't describe my feelings," said Mrs. Chamberlin. "It would be foolish to try. I am going to fly or ride on a train or walk with Clarence anywhere he goes in Europe. He shall not get out of my sight.

"I am longing to reach Berlin where years ago I once hoped to study music, but I never had money enough. I am still playing the piano.

"I brought Clarence's dress suit and some clothes." Then she looked at her husband in his worn flying clothes. "I think he needs taking care of. I forgot his shoes and hats though, for I only had two hours to pack."

Henry Schoenhals of New York, an old friend of Chamberlin's arrived on the Berlin as an involuntary stowaway, with $3.17 in his pockets. He had gone to bid farewell to Mrs. Chamberlin and the boat left before he could get ashore. Mrs. Chamberlin paid his fare.

"Clarence and I were the best of pals when he was flying around New York," said Schoenhals. "I'll pay him back immediately."

The two flyers and their wives are flying to Hamburg. Then they will proceed to Madgesburg and will arrive in Berlin this evening.

REPORT SPLIT IN RAIL UNION BODIES

CLEVELAND, June 17.—According to announcement by spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers now in convention here, individual agreements may be formed in the future with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, to supplant the "Chicago agreement" which was ordered terminated several days ago and dies automatically thirty days after the decree.

The "Chicago agreement" has served to hold the two brotherhoods together in their relations with railroad managements since 1913. Termination of the agreement will work no particular hardship, however, in the opinion of H. E. Wills, Washington, assistant grand chief engineer, one of the official spokesmen, who expressed the belief that differences could be adjusted better individually than through one national agreement.

Others declared however, that the action of the engineers might mean that the two unions will here after work independently of each other.

FLYER PASSES FIELD ABOUT ONE O'CLOCK; NOT SEEN FROM HERE

Escort Planes Join Ace Over Wright Field—Royal Welcome Awaits Aviator When He Reaches St. Louis

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh flew over Wright Field, Fairfield, a few minutes after 1 o'clock, Friday afternoon and headed direct for Dayton, enroute to St. Louis, in his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis."

A number of escorting planes of the fast pursuit division of the army air corps accompanied the trans-Atlantic flier from Dayton to St. Louis, joining him in the air over Fairfield.

NEW YORK, June 17.—With a happy smile and a wave to the assembled throng, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off from Mitchell Field at 8:17 this morning for St. Louis in his famous monoplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

He had planned to make the 900-mile westward flight in ten hours, but it would be just like "Slim" to try and better his record jump from St. Louis to New York of seven hours and fifteen minutes.

More than 2,000 persons including many women, cheered as "we" soared gracefully into the air and headed due west.

"Lindy" executed his take off so quickly that the crowd was taken by surprise. Without easing the monoplane out of the hangar, as is customary, Lindbergh "opened her up" wide and roared out onto the field between two lines of spectators. He shot along for about 100 feet, and then rose sharply at an angle. Within two minutes he was out of sight.

Weather conditions were perfect for the take off. The sky was cloudless and the sun shining.

Just before he took off Lindbergh said he would fly a straight airline course for St. Louis. He said he would encircle New York City, proceeding directly to Columbus, pass over Wilbur Wright Field at Dayton, O., where he is to be met and escorted by twenty-one pursuit planes and that he may fly over Indianapolis.

He will land at Almbert Field, St. Louis, he said, and expects to arrive there at 4:30 p. m., Central time. He hoped to gain two hours by flying straight westward into the sun, he said.

New York's official goodbye was said by Grover A. Whalen, head of the city's welcoming committee.

"I enjoyed my stay and will be glad to come back again," said Lindbergh.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" sailed over Brooklyn, then crossed to New York, circled the Woolworth Building as thousands watched and then headed over the Battery in a westerly direction. Two planes followed him as he flew low over the battery.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The Lindbergh frenzy today had thrown St. Louis into civic hysteria.

"Slim" is coming home.

Nothing else matters. The city has locked its collective rolltop desk and let itself run wild in an orgy of adulation.

Flight bulletins have usurped the place of stock market tickers as St. Louis tensely follows the progress of his flight from the east. The civic enthusiasm which followed the winning of the world's baseball championship last year threatens to become a mere ripple of excitement in comparison with the onrushing wave of emotionalism which will strike the city about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, when the "ace of the Atlantic" will wing his way over the Mississippi River, and glide down over his adopted city.

Never has the city been in such a gala dress. Myriad flags and pictures of "Lindy" and tiny replicas of "The Spirit of St. Louis," hang in every street.

Theaters and cabarets have their special Lindbergh song numbers prepared and ready. Lindbergh placards, buttons, posters, stickers, dolls, hats, shoes and cravats fill the shop windows and flood the streets. New York, it seems, gave this city a few ideas on the importance of such occasions.

COOLIDGE COMES TO CITY TO SUBMIT TO NEWS INTERVIEWS

Fishing Suffers As Coolidge Favors Reporters

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 17.—It was a case of the mountain coming to Mohammet today—if the newspaper men covering President Coolidge in his Black Hills summer white house may be called prophets.

Reversing the original order wherein the press representatives motor thirty-two miles from Rapid City to the state game lodge to cover the president's vacation activities and then motor thirty-two miles back to file the story, Mr. Coolidge agreed to come to the temporary executive offices at Rapid City this morning and submit himself to an interview, subject to the usual restrictions.

Today's press conference will be held in the Rapid City High School in a room circled with blackboards—the executive's office during the summer. Adjoining class rooms house Secretary Everett Sanders, Private Secretary Edward T. Clark, Doorkeeper Pat McKenna, and the stenographers, clerks and messengers who were brought from Washington that the official business of the White House might progress as usual.

Meanwhile, the presidential fishing will suffer until after lunch, to be served at the state game lodge at one o'clock. The lunch was to have been subordinated to a two o'clock press conference—mountain time—but Mrs. Coolidge put her foot down on this disruption of game lodge routine.

Fishing, mentioned above, was held over from Paul Smith's, N. Y., as a Coolidge obsession. Yesterday, the president started his piscatorial efforts at eight a. m., and following an interruption occasioned by an engagement with the movie men and inspection trip to his Rapid City offices, he returned to sink a worm and hook into the rushing, shallow waters of Squaw creek until dark.

AMERICAN STEAMER STRUCK BY BULLETS

PEKING, June 17.—A Standard Oil Company steamship which was carrying United States vice consul Robert L. Smyth from Ichang was under heavy rifle fire between Wuchang and Hanyang, and, while a number of bullets struck the bridge, there were no casualties, said a dispatch received here today.

The American destroyer divisions are holding their usual summer target practice off Chefoo.

Two American submarine divisions are now at Tsingtao while the American cruisers Richmond and Marblehead are at Chilgwangtao.

JUDGE SANCTIONED ACTION IS SAID

CLEVELAND, O., June 17.—George H. Clark, former state supreme court justice and one time Republican state chairman, sanctioned the taking of merchandise from the stock of the bankrupt American Cycle company at Canton, without knowledge or consent of Don Krug, receiver for the concern, according to Krug's testimony in the hearing for Clark before Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver.

Clark acted as attorney for Krug who had given him a key to the company's store. L. C. McGinley, of Akron, who bought the property of the defunct company, noticed on checking up, that some of the merchandise entered on the appraisal list was missing.

Part of this was located at the hardware store operated by Judge Clark's son, John, witnesses have testified. Judge Clark claims that the property was worth only about $137 and that the transfer was made with the consent and knowledge of Krug, the receiver, and with the understanding that his son would pay the full appraised value.

CHILD DROWNS

MIDDLETOWN, O., June 17.—Middletown's first drowning was on record here today, following the death of eight-year-old Wilma May Sexton. She was drowned last night while playing along a concrete embankment of the Miami River. Her playmates said she fell into the water while attempting to retrieve a shoe that had dropped from her foot.

RESTRAIN MINERS FROM INTERFERING

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—Miners of sub-district No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, today were under orders from federal district court here prohibiting them from interfering with employes of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., in their operations at Adena, Jefferson County.

A temporary injunction was issued by Federal Judge Benson Hough, on application of attorneys for the local concern here late yesterday, as an aftermath of disturbances which have occurred in Adena during the past week, and which were climaxed by an appeal from the mayor of the town to Governor Donahey for state troops to maintain order.

Sheriff W. T. Allison, of Jefferson County, however, denied to the governor that there was any serious disorder, said that troops were unnecessary, and indicated that he was in position to maintain complete order.

Hearing on a motion to make permanent the restraining order has been set for next Thursday, and it was indicated that attorneys representing the miners' union would appear in opposition.

Partners Run Amuck!! Forget Tire Prices!! Profits Forgotten!!

As I snuck in the back way to gather material for this week's ad I heard loud voices and the heavy dull thumps of something or other which sounded like heavy fists landing on the cheek-bones of truck drivers! As I snuck nearer I found that these sounds were being caused by the unloading of thousands of NEW TIRES in the back room.

There were over THREE CARLOADS OF 'EM!

The two partners along with five helpers and three bookkeepers were trying to sort these tires out sos they could put PRICES on them. Just at that moment the pet eagle got to quarelling with Prosperity's tame lion and the sheets containing the prices and the COSTS were chewed up in the melee!

The partners LAUGHED!

"Now we can have a REAL TIRE SALE," says Carroll.

"Call Shorty in here and have him get up an ad telling Greene County citizens all about it," yells Prosperity.

"Call out the fire department," says Bunty.

Just then I comes in and they all hopped on me at once! Having heard the excitement and realizing that it requires a plenty WORK to get up a big ad I does everything in my vocabulary to get 'em to lay off such foolishness. The more I talked the more sure the two partners were that they wanted a big ad and a BIG SALE!

The result was that I went on home and haven't showed up since! If they want to make chumps out of themselves by pulling a TIRE SALE at a time of year when EVERY ONE IS BUYING TIRES ANYWAY by gosh they ain't going to make me any party to it! Nussir!

So I'm not going to say one word about their nutty idea at all. I'm just going to let nature take its course and if the citizens of this county want to impose on these poor dodos by getting their TIRES AT COST or LESS certainly it's not going to be held again ME!

These three car loads of TIRES MUST be sold by July First so Carroll says. And Prosperity AGREES WITH HIM!

There sure is more than ONE WAY to act dumb, if you gather what I mean.

Miss Elsie Canby Heads Xenia B. P. W. Club

Miss Elsie Canby, Greene County court stenographer, was elected president of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, at the annual meeting, at First Reformed Church, Thursday evening. She succeeds Miss Henryetta Logan, who has efficiently filled the office two years and was recently elected state treasurer of the B. P. W. Clubs.

Miss Canby is one of the charter members of the Xenia club and has taken an active interest in the organization. Mrs. Clara L. Reutinger was elected vice-president; Miss Helen Graham, secretary; Miss Lorena Paullin, corresponding secretary; Miss Helen Hurley, reelected treasurer and Miss Stella Tuhey, assistant treasurer.

A delicious dinner was served at 5:45 o'clock by women of the Reformed Church. The tables were effectively appointed with summer flowers and yellow candles. Annual reports were given after dinner by officers and standing committees.

Miss Logan announced that members are to pay their dues by July 1, to avoid the Federation penalty.

FORMER XENIAN IS MARRIED IN NEW YORK

Miss Marianne Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, Cedarville, O., and Mr. George William Confer, son of Mr. H. T. Confer, Dayton, O., formerly of Xenia, were married Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock at the Little Church Around the Corner, New York City.

They were accompanied by Mrs. F. A. Lott, sister of te bridegroom, and Mr. Gordon Hammond, both of Dayton.

After the ceremony the young couple will motor through the East, returning home by way of Baltimore, Washington and other points of interest.

Mrs. Confer has been employed for the last year and a half in the office of the N. C. R., Dayton. Mr. Confer is an auto salesman for the Dodge Brothers Co., at Dayton. They will be at home to their friends after July 1, at 715 N. Broadway, Dayton, O.

Two prenuptial parties were given for the pleasure of Mrs. Confer last week. Thursday evening, June 9, Mrs. Seth Thomas, Dayton, entertained with a miscellaneous "shower." During the evening linen towels were hemmed. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received by the bride. Guests were present from Cedarville, Spring Valley and Dayton.

Monday evening, June 13, Mrs. F. A. Lott, Dayton, O., received twenty guests in honor of Mrs. Confer. The evening was spent with sewing and games. Dainty refreshments were served.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS GIVES FLAG DAY PROGRAM

Following its annual custom of observing Flag Day, Lewis Post Women's Relief Corps presented an appropriate program at the Corps rooms in the Court House, Tuesday.

A group of youngsters took part, including Marian and Marie Kafory, who gave violin and piano selections; Robert Dewey, a recitation and Betty McKay, a reading.

The program was completed with patriotic songs by the audience.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED AT KID PARTY.

As a complete surprise to the guests was the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Velma Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, near New Burlington and Mr. John Kenney, of Springfield, which was disclosed at a "kid party" entertained by Miss Kathryn Conklin at her home on Home Ave., Thursday evening.

The guests were given cards bearing the names of Miss Davis and Mr. Kenney and July 16, as the date of their marriage. The cards were found at each cover during refreshments, concealed in a tiny pink baby shoe, containing animal crackers. A color scheme of pink, white and green was used, with the living room transformed into a nursery.

Each guest was dressed in juvenile costume and music and childhood games furnished amusements.

The guests of the evening included the Misses Velma and Mabel Davis, Helen, Aletha and Josephine Conklin, Martha Van Tress, Dorothy and Helen Lackey, Alma Mendenhall, Rowena and Mildred McKay, Kathryn Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vandervort, Messrs. John Kenney, James Beam, William Pond, Robert Gegner, Elwood Smith, Bernard Haines, Leon Mills, Theodore McIntire, Erba Beason, John Baugh, Charles Kohler and Alan Mendenhall.

MARJORIE STREET RECITAL APPLAUDED.

Music patrons who filled the Dayton Woman's Club, 225 N. Ludlow St., Dayton, Thursday evening, were delighted with the technique of Miss Marjorie Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Street E. Third St., Xenia, and pupil of Mrs. Robert McClure, Dayton.

Miss Street's playing showed the excellent coaching of Mrs. McClure and each number on her program was enthusiastically received by the patrons. Miss Street received many floral tributes from friends for her recital.

Assisting in the program was Miss Louis Street, sister of the pianist and an accomplished cellist. Miss Lois Street is a student of Alfred Hein, Dayton and her playing shows promise.

BRIDE-ELECT GUEST OF HONOR AT PARTY

Miss Dorothy Scarff, S. Detroit St., entertained members of Mrs. Warren Clouse's Sunday School Class, First M. E. Church, with a miscellaneous "shower" honoring Miss Mabel Fawcett, Thursday evening.

Fifteen young women were entertained. Contests, games and music amused the guests. Miss Fawcett, a bride-elect, received many gifts. Pink and white were employed in the refreshment appointments.

Miss Fawcett's marriage to Mr. Willard Long, this city, will take place the latter part of the month.

CHURCH PLAYS ARE GIVEN SUCCESSFULLY

FREESE-KEITER NUPTIALS IN DAYTON

At their own home on Point View Ave., Dayton, Miss Thelma Freese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Freese, 311 St. Paul Ave., Dayton and Mr. Charles Keiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Keiter, Stone Road, south of Xenia, were united in marriage Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Sixty-five guests, relatives and friends, witnessed the pretty ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Niswonger, High St., U. B. Church, Dayton, officiated.

Mrs. Mildred Lutz, Dayton, played the wedding march and accompanied Mrs. Foy Coffelt, Xenia, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," before the ceremony.

The attendants were Mrs. Russell L. Snyder, Dayton, bride's attendant; Mrs. Herbert E. Wigger, Dayton, matron of honor; Mr. Robert Copeland, Xenia, best man and little Miss Margaret Wigger, flower girl. The bride and her attendants formed a procession through the reception rooms and the vows were taken in the living room. The double ring ceremony was performed.

The bride's gown was of white brocaded satin, and her veil of tulle was caught cap-fashion and formed a train. She carried bride's roses. Mrs. Snyder wore orchid, Mrs. Wigger, yellow and little Miss Wigger, a blue frock.

A two course supper was served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Keiter left Friday morning for the Great Lakes to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Keiter is head bookkeeper at the Hoefler-Stocklein Co., dealers in coal and building materials, in Dayton.

The bride is a graduate of Lewisburg High School, class of 1922 and Mr. Keiter graduated from Xenia Central High School in 1923 and also Miami-Jacobs, Dayton.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE WAITING SOUL:—Truly my soul waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation. He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence. Psalm 62:1,2.

NEW USE FOR IDLE BOATS

The suggestion that now that Colonel Lindbergh has demonstrated the practicability of trans-oceanic flying, the idle hulks which the Shipping Board has failed to incorporate in our merchant marine should be utilized as supply stations for an all-American trans-ocean air service is made by Edward Marshall in "Forbes Magazine."

"The really great achievement of Charles A. Lindbergh," emphasizes Mr. Marshall, "will be to wake up business men to the importance and efficiency of air-transport. It occurs to me that the calm, cool-headed, smilingly splendid boy who flew the 3,610 miles between New York and Paris in 33½ hours, was, in fact, America's greatest commercial traveller, its most notable bank messenger. Lindbergh's significance to business seems greater than that of any mercantile or financial magnets on either side of the Atlantic.

Mr. Marshall feels that it is reasonable to believe that Lindbergh's oversea flight will indicate to progressive men and governments that trans-ocean air mail must be an enterprise to be undertaken before long.

"Surely it would be an immense stimulant to international business," he says, "if Lindbergh's time between New York and Paris could even be approximated by regularly flying Air Mail planes. And if Lindbergh did the thing once, why should it not be done daily? The transcontinental Air Mail and its success, plus Lindbergh, seems to answer that inquiry."

Such a service to be followed by a trans-ocean passenger line, Mr. Marshall believes, might provide a usefulness for those idle vessels of the Shipping Board. He asks, "Why should not these war-time hulks be anchored in a line at intervals across the sea, a matter long since shown by oceanographers to be a possibility, and thus be utilized as guaranteed of safety and supply stations for an all-American transocean air service?"

The Way of the World

By Grove Patterson

NO SHORT-CUT TO BRAINS

Said George Eliot: "There is no short cut, no patent tram-road to wisdom. After all the centuries of invention, the soul's path lies through the thorny wilderness which must still be trodden in solitude, with bleeding feet, with sobs for help, as it was trodden by them of old time."

Strange, is it not, that despite all the labor-saving devices, all the washing machines, automobiles and fireless cookers on the face of the earth, the great experiences of life which make men and women bigger and better must come just as hard as they did. The way to real worth, to actual greatness, is no easier. The things to be added to life which give it real meaning and purpose and which alone make it worth living in the larger sense, must come just as they always have. All the automatic machinery in the world cannot give the soul of man something for nothing.

LABORING AND WAITING

"The path or glory is barred hog-tight for a man who does not labor while he waits," William Allen White says. When White went to Emporia, Kansas, 7 years ago, he and his family had only a dollar and a quarter in cash. He borrowed all the money with which to buy a country newspaper. Today, by studying people and loving people, plus an unlimited portion of hard work, he has reached the place where he can get a big enough price for everything he writes to make him a rich man. He labored while he waited.

WHERE GUM CLASSIFIES

Chewing gum, barred from sale on the ships of our navy 15 years ago, is back in good standing. Scientists and students of history may now determine whether this is an indication of human progress or merely a change of habits.

WE HATE TO THINK

Sir Joshua Reynolds, great painter, once wrote a line which told a great deal of truth about all of us. He said: "There is no expedient to which a man will not resort to avoid the real labor of thinking."

It is so easy to accept opinions ready made, to agree with the last man we talk to, to fall in line and march with the crowds just because everybodyis going that way.

It takes courage to be inconsistent and different. It takes nerve to proceed on our own convictions.

How to Achieve Beauty

DANDRUFF AND GRAYING HAIR

Today we are going to consider dandruff. Extreme cases of dandruff often lead to baldness and for this reason it is considered a serious scalp disease. Dandruff is an infectious germ and it may be transferred by the use of infected combs, hair pins, towels and even hat linings. However, like other diseases it seldom makes much progress with healthy tissues, but if it finds a scalp that is unhealthy or neglected it settles down for a long stay.

As soon as dandruff symptoms become apparent, it is time to get busy and try to check them by the right sort of treatment. If it is taken in time it may be checked. Eternal vigilance may be necessary ever after, to effect a complete cure, but it is well worth the effort for there is nothing more humiliating than to have one's clothing continually covered with white scales and broken hair, or to suffer a partial loss of your hair.

The first noticeable symptom of dandruff is the presence of soft greasy scales on the scalp and I would advise that you consult your physician at once and let him treat you for the trouble whether it is local or general. In the meantime shampoo the hair once a week with your herbal shampoo, after which you should apply a good dandruff lotion. If you find the condition does not improve then you should by all means undergo a series of local treatments at the hands of a specialist.

In regard to gray hair let me say that no woman should naturally turn gray before fifty; one of the best ways to prevent premature grayness is stimulation which is caused by frequent brushing and massage. The following lotion is also helpful in preventing hair from turning gray. Apply a little to scalp once a day if an occasional gray hair is beginning to make its appearance: Sulphur, 1 ounce, bay rum, 4 ounces.

KELLYGRAMS

by FRED C. KELLY

A CURE FOR TRASHY READING

Teachers in a preparatory school for boys were disturbed recently by reports that their students were neglecting assigned reading and were squandering their money on trashy magazines such as today infest most news stands.

They held a conference to decide what to do. One suggestion was to appeal to the town authorities to stop the sale there of all magazines not approved by the school. But they abandoned that as too presumptuous a form of censorship.

Then a young instructor, whose views had not been sought, inquired:

"What would be the matter with using the objectionable magazines for reading in class?"

Everybody looked startled for a moment, and then the notion began to sink in that here was a cagey suggestion.

The plan is now being carried out and the English classes regularly read trash as part of their assignments. Having read such stories, students are asked to discuss them, just as they might any other piece of literature. They tell in class just what seems to make each story interesting—what merits must have led the editor to accept it for publication.

When the story plots were thus picked to pieces the boys were surprised to discover that they weren't very interesting after all, but evidently intended for a sucker clientele not capable of judging good from bad. They learned that far more exciting stories, with real human beings for characters, were available in a nearby public library.

Investigation at news stands and stores where magazines were sold showed a big falling off in demand from student customers.

All of which brings up the question: What makes good literature good?

Probably the same thing that makes good music good—and that is wearing quality.

Music dealers who sell talking machine records know that if they can induce a customer to buy two or three records, that have stood the test of time, he will enjoy his machine and keep on buying records. The delights of music will grow on him. But the customer who carries home only a few samples of current jazz gradually becomes fed up and quits buying any music at all.

Perhaps the cure for trashy reading is to give readers a chance to have all they want of it. Then they will outgrow it.

HOSPITALS WITH MODERATE CHARGES

The matter of being sick nowadays is a very serious affair not only from the physical standpoint, the worry, the anxiety, the disturbance of the household affairs, but the enormous pecuniary outlay which it involves.

If there is a nurse, or two of them, for many nurses are unwilling to do more than the minimum which trades union laws prescribe, there is one large item of expense.

The bill for medicines in many illnesses is a huge one, for I know of no medicines of any importance that are cheap.

Then there are special diet, extra laundry, and if the case is a surgical one, a large outlay for dressings and other surgical requirements.

Last of all comes the doctor's bill or perhaps two of them, if a surgeon or a consultant has been necessary, and that is sometimes enough to frighten anybody except a millionaire or a high wage mechanic.

If all this procedure has to be carried on in an apartment, with no extra rooms for such emergencies, it is easy to see how extremely difficult the situation becomes, and it is conceivable that in some cases it might affect the outcome of the sickness.

In many instances, therefore, if sickness, the ever unwelcome visitor, comes, the only recourse is the hospital.

Fortunate it is that in these times there is scarcely a community of any size that is not provided with some kind of a hospital large, or small, good, bad or indifferent.

Hospitals are increasing in number, in quality and in price. There are many supplies in hospitals which are essential, they cannot be dispensed with if the hospital is run properly.

There are also a great many things which are superfluities, which could be cut down or cut out altogether.

I believe it is possible to run a hospital successfully and economically, but I have not seen many hospitals which are so run. The argument often advanced is, the public pays the bill—hang the expense!

Now, rigid economy should be the watchword with all who live off the public and spend the people's money, but it is not, that is it is not generally, and hospitals are not very often exceptions to the general rule.

Hence the expense of going to a public hospital is often unduly burdensome. The very rich can meet any demands which may be made of them, the very poor pay nothing, their bills are met by the tax payer.

But what of the intermediate class, clerks, bookkeepers, salaried officials of the minor grades and many others?

A sickness of a few weeks or months can easily eat up a year's salary. And so there is a demand for hospitals in which the charges will not be burdensome and overpowering.

I read of one which is to be started soon in a county not far from New York in which the charges are not to exceed $25 per week.

Even that is too much; in the case of a chronic invalid or an aged person that means $1,300 a year, just for hospital charges. That is a subject which is worthy of much discussion and careful thought, for it affects the welfare of thousands and hundreds of thousands of good citizens.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

TOMATOES A LA PARMA

Eight medium sized tomatoes, two ounces of spaghetti, half-pint of shrimps, small lettuce, cucumber, two tablespoons of mayonnaise, beetroot, small cress.

Skin the tomatoes, cut a round out of the tops and scoop out all the pulp. Cut the lettuce and cucumber into small squares. Boil the spaghetti with a teaspoon of salt in water until quite soft, then drain and cut into inch lengths and let it get quite cold. Well flavor some mayonnaise sauce, mix lightly into it the shrimps, spaghetti, cucumber and lettuce, fill the tomato cases with this mixture; sprinkle over the tops some chopped chervil; cut out some rings of beetroot with a crinkled cutter and lay one on top of each tomato with a sprig of chervil stuck in the center. Sprinkle mustard and cress with a little oil, vinegar, pepper and salt, lay it upon a dish and stand the tomatoes upon it.

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"The methods by which modern business is transacted are intricate. To comprehend their intracies and to appreciate their significance, men must have business training. In an involved bankruptcy case, a jury of business men is vitally necessary. Yet the men who are best qualified to serve, ask to be excused; and too frequently the judge, weary of continual insistence on the citizen's performance of his duty, excuses the competent business men jurors and permits the shipping clerk, the taxi driver and the business failure to try the case."—United States District Judge John C. Knox.

"The transatlantic flights of Captain Lindbergh and of Chamberlin have demonstrated the feasibility of aviation as a factor in commerce. The time will come when it will be as easy to fly over the land as the sea. Air mail commerce with Europe is in sight. Congress should be back of these pioneers in this wonderful development that is coming."—Representative T. W. Harrison.

"The American people use annually as much powder as all the rest of the world put together. Our output is five times that of Germany, seven times that of France, nine times that of Italy, and ten times that of England. Our annual production of electric energy has increased in the past seven years from 34.9 billion kilowatt hours to 68.1 billion kilowatt hours, a gain of approximately 100 per cent."—Representative Charles A. Eaton.

"There is something that Second Liberty Loan bondholders ought to know: the secretary of the treasury has announced that he will exchange at par Second Liberty Loan bonds, bond for bond, for a new issue of United States bonds maturing in twenty years, callable not earlier than sixteen years from June 15 and bearing three and three-eighths per cent interest."—Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury.

"I believe in love but not in sex as that word is understood on Broadway. I do not believe in promiscuity or license, and I have never taught nor glorified it in any of my books. In Floyd Dell's biography, which is about to be published, I am described as "fundamentally a Puritan."—Upton Sinclair.

"The nicest part of America is the American part. It is the indigenous expression of America, such as the terraced skyscrapers which approximate so strongly, and without intention, to old terraced pyramids of the Maya and Aztec civilizations, that matter to the world. That America should become a richer, but second-rate Europe, would be a disaster. The soil of America must work out its own destiny."—Osbert Sitwell, English author.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 17.—O. O. McIntyre under erroneous impression that John Farrar is out of a job. There is the type of man who waits until he thinks his opponent is strapped to the boards and then goes up and gives him a swift kick. And there is the journalist who waits until he thinks a man is gagged and then he bats. Thus McIntyre:

"There seems nothing bright in the prospectus (sic) of what is to me the dullest of all publications—the Bookman. The editorship has passed from John Farrar. . . . Farrar is one of these poetical pale blondes (sic) who seems to have achieved nothing on the job save prying a few lines of publicity for being the youngest magazine editor. The sorriest young printer's boy might have filled the job capably."

Very well, ignoring McIntyre's ignorance of the dictionary and his ugly syntax:

McIntyre is a cadaverous, sour-faced hack, a former hotel press agent who dresses like a Negro sheik from the Harlem black and tan belt. He lives in silken ease in a suite at the Ritz Carlton by writing pieces, designed to flatter the small town men, about how he yearns to be back slopping the pigs in Plattsburg, Mo., and by stealing the ideas, phrases and whole paragraphs of brighter and worthier men.

He flatters those in power, particularly bootleg kings, night club hostesses and shimmy shakers. Among the most eloquent tributes he has ever written were anthems in praise of Texas Guinan, a $2,000-a-week night club hostess, frequently in the toils of the prohibition law, and to Gilda Gray, who gets as much as $14,000 a week for shaking her hips. He rarely writes a paragraph that does not seem calculated to get him something, whether it is the deduction of a cover charge in a night club, a reduced rate on an ocean liner, or a commission for a magazine article.

Mr. Farrar is not being thrown out of a job, as McIntyre mistakenly assumed when he wrote that paragraph (he would not have written it, I believe, if he thought Mr. Farrar could retaliate). Mr. Farrar is the editorial director of the George H. Doran company, a publishing house which lists H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole, Frank Swinnerton, Irvin S. Cobb, Compton Mackenzie, Michael Arlen, Mary Roberts Rhinehardt, George Barr McCutcheon, Robert W. Chambers, P. G. Wodehouse, T. E. Lawrence, Du Bose Heyward, Aldous Huxley, Hervey Allen, Thomas Burke, Cyril Hume, Floyd Dell, Osbert Sitwell, Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Conan Doyle. If "the sorriest young printer's boy" could be editorial director of a list like that then this very Odd McIntyre could bat for Babe Ruth.

Mr. Farrar has no less than nine books to his credit, three of which are of very charming verse for children and adults. He writes fiction and essays for such worthy publications as the Woman's Home Companion, McCall's, and the Ladies' Home Journal. He has had two plays produced on Broadway. He is a lecturer much in demand throughout the country. He is an instructor in journalism at New York University. He conducts a summer school in the art and technique of writing. He was a first lieutenant in the U. S. Air Service during the war. He is married and has a son. And he is only 31 years old.

Oscar Odd McIntyre is 43 years old. Though affluent and without offspring he had no war record even as a Liberty Loan orator. And, though he has been a writer most of his life, he has published but one book, which was so roundly slated by the reviewers and so generally ignored by the public that Oscar Odd has had ever since a grudge against anyone remotely connected with or interested in books.

These writers who continue to live in New York and yet who are always writing about what a hellhole it is and how much happier they would be if they were in Gumbo, Mississippi, burn me up. There are trains leaving for the west, north and south out of New York every four minutes. I did not like living on the Island of Manhattan, and so I moved to the suburb of Mamaroneck. But I go into the city every week day, and if I did not like it I would go elsewhere.

I have earned my living as a farm hand. I have picked cotton, pitched hay, dug potatoes, chopped corn, plowed land, rounded up cattle, chopped and corded wood, and helped at hog killing time. I have run a candy, a hot-dog and lemonade concession at a county fair. I have sold shoes in a small town. I have worked in a cotton gin. Those jobs were all right; but if I liked any one of them better than the job I have, that would be the job I would go after.

And, if you ask me, my suspicion is that those who write otherwise would do the same.

One summer I chopped sugar cane on a farm. The temperature was about 120 in the shade most of the time. The cane was sticky and the chaff got mingled with the sweat of my body and itched and burned and irritated my skin. Slivers of the cane cut the flesh of my left hand and made it bleed. I worked from six in the morning until sundown at night and sundown came very late. If I said I would rather be back chopping sugar cane instead of sitting on a nice, comfortable, shaded porch in my shirt sleeves, with a pitcher of lemonade at my side, writing this, I'd be a—you know what.

That is not to say that I do not yearn at times to burst open a watermelon and eat out the heart as it lies in an open field, go 'possum hunting or chase jack-rabbits, go swimming in a deep, clear pool after riding horseback all afternoon, and do other things in kind that are impossible to a New Yorker except for a few days out of the year. And sometimes I even wish I had the appetite I developed about supper time after plowing all day. But I would prefer to satisfy that appetite at almost any restaurant in New York. A farmer I used to work for always had boiled salt pork, lima beans, corn bread, sorgum molasses, and chickory coffee, and no vegetables or variation for supper.

XENIA IMPROVING POSITION IN QUOIT LEAGUE STANDING

Dayton Riverdale continues to show the way in the Miami Valley Quoit League with the N. C. R. team of Dayton in second place.

Xenia is in fifth position but is pressing closely on the heels of the Shrine Club and has an excellent opportunity to better its position by winning its next match with the N. C. R. Monday night here.

League matches Monday night resulted in Xenia and Riverdale breaking even in eighteen games, Eastwood defeating Tipp City 11 to 7 and in the N. C. R. beating the Shrine 6 to 3 the first shift. The second shift was postponed on account of rain.

League Standing:

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.

SPRING VALLEY IS LEADING TRIANGLE LEAGUE STANDING

Bowersville Bayliffs, disputing second place in the Triangle League with Wilmington, have an excellent chance to go into a tie for first place in the game with the league-leading Spring Valley nine on the Wilmington diamond Sunday afternoon. Play will be called at 3 p. m.

Spring Valley has a slim grip on the top position, one full game ahead of the Bayliffs and Wilmington. The latter clubs are tied for second place.

As the game Sunday will be the only meeting between the two teams this season, the Bayliffs are counting upon making the most of the opportunity.

Following is the league standing:

Team.	W.	L.
Spring Valley	5	2
Bayliffs	4	3
Wilmington	4	3
Waynesville	3	4
Woodmen	3	4
Jamestown	2	5

FIFTEEN ENTRANTS IN HAMILTON RACES

Fifteen cars are entered in the auto races on the Hamilton, O., speedway Sunday, June 26, piloted by some of the country's best dirt track drivers including Bill McCoy, Dempsey Chaney, George Hiller, Don Campbell, Ira Hall, Joe Elliott and many others.

The races will start at 3 p. m., promptly and keen competition is in prospect over the fastest half-mile track in Ohio.

ELEPHANTS WITH CHRISTY SHOW

Miss Jumbo and Clara are two of the elephants with the Christy Bros. circus, which will offer two performances here Saturday afternoon and evening at Ringer's show grounds, Gincinnati Ave. The circus will stage a parade Saturday morning. It is coming here from Wilmington.

The Theatre

One of Lon Chaney's earliest major roles, which is also held to be among his greatest, is the dual part he plays in the Universal-Jewel production, "Outside the Law," in which Priscilla Dean is the star. This astounding crook melodrama, which enjoyed an enviable success a few years ago, and has recently been revived for local showing comes to the Bijou Theater, Friday.

In addition to Priscilla Dean and Lon Chaney, the cast includes Ralph Lewis, Wheeler Oakman, E. A. Warren, Stanley Geothals, Melbourne MacDowell and Wilton Taylor.

"Big husky heroes, All-American football stars shook before the camera and shivered so they couldn't smile" was the report of newspapermen who reviewed thousands of feet of film of the four hundred and sixty-six college men selected from thirty-seven of the leading American universities, in an effort to pick ten of the finest types of college men for the screen.

Ten outstanding men were selected and the feature of the tests was the real, honest timidity of the boys. There was no evidence of conceit about any of the winners. In addition to having photographic qualities, they had fine ideals and human sympathy, an eager progressive spirit that will be a real aid in the movies.

Then ten men selected are: John Westwood, Princeton; Richard M. Clendenin, U. of Cal.; Leland F. Wilcox and Thomas K. Denton, Michigan; John Vancleve Morris, Purdue; Stuart Clayton Knox, Yale; Edward E. Karges and Warner Grahm Smoot from Northwestern; John Howland Stambaugh, Chicago; and Daniel C. Cassidy from Georgia Tech., who will go to California at the close of school for work in the movies.

Four famous football captains: Charlie Moeser of Princeton, Fred Pickard of Alabama, John Roberts of Pittsburgh, and Wally Marks of Chicago, were screened, as well as four All-American; Kelley of Montana, Shopkey of Stanford, Broda of Brown, and Pickhard of Alabama. More than forty crew, baseball, tennis, swimming and polo stars were also filmed at the thirty-seven schools.

The ten winners will be filmed in various roles with Colleen Moore, Harry Langdon, Milton Sills, Richard Barthelmess and other First National stars at Burbank, California, this summer.

JUNIOR BUSINESS MEN CONTINUE LEAD IN SOFT BALL LOOP

Junior Business Men made it five in a row and extended their lead in the Xenia Playground League to two and one-half games, by defeating Central High School 20 to 11 in a hectic soft ball contest at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday night.

The game was closely contested for six innings but the winners stepped out with a seven-run scoring spree in the seventh inning to clinch the contest.

The Junior Business Men staked themselves to a five-run lead in the first inning but Central managed to tie it up at 7 to 7 in the fourth. The business men then took the lead in the fifth and were never headed.

A home run by Carl Highley in the first inning was the only four base smash of the game.

Doak and Rakoff formed Central's battery with Frame pitching and J. McCurran behind the plate for the winners.

Boy Scouts will meet the cellar-dwelling Kiwanis Club Friday night.

FIFTY TWO WILL GRADUATE AT ANTIOCH COLLEGE JUNE 25

President Arthur E. Morgan will be the principal speaker at the Antioch College commencement exercises Saturday morning, June 25 at 10 o'clock when fifty-two undergraduates received their diplomas.

The week of June 19 will be crowded with commencement activities opening with the senior vespers on the college campus Sunday at 7 p. m., with the Rev. Hugh I. Evans, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, in charge.

Antioch Pioneers Society will meet in the college assembly hall Wednesday, June 22 at 8 p. m., and the junior prom is scheduled for 9 o'clock Thursday evening, June 23 in Kelley Hall.

Activities Friday, June 24, will begin with a picnic in Antioch Glen from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., with the president's reception set for from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock. Between 5 and 6 p. m. the alumni business meeting will be held and the alumni banquet between 6 and 9 o'clock. Following the banquet, the senior class play, "Horace Mann," will be presented on the college steps.

Collation on the campus at 12 o'clock noon, will immediately follow the graduation exercises Saturday morning, June 25. In the afternoon the closing commencement day feature will be a baseball game between the college varsity and the alumni, scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Following is a list of Antioch College graduates this year:

Archie Allardyce, Saginaw, Mich.; Harold Clayton Atkiss, Philadelphia, Pa; Carl Wimler Boese, Dayton, O.; Irving Cannon, Yellow Springs; Constance Ching-Er Chang, Chingju, Shanghai, China; Bennett Chapple, Middletown, O.; Elizabeth Clarke, Berkeley, Calif.; Jean Collier, Denver, Colo.; Lucille Corry, Yellow Springs; Charles Dougherty, Detroit, Mich.; Franklin Drivness, Winona, Minn.; Dorothy Clara Fay, Boston, Mass.; Gordon Fenstermaker, Slatington, Pa.; John Robert Fierer, Homestead, Pa.; William Filene, Newtonville, Mass.; Harry Rundell Finch, Salamanca, N. ARROW SHOE STORE OPENED TO PATRONS HERE ON THURSDAY

Exterior and interior improvements to the room formerly occupied by Moser's shoe store, S. Detroit St., weer remarked by patrons when the new Arrow Shoe Co., opened its doors in the same room Thursday.

Exterior improvements include a new vestibule front and attractive display windows and installation of a new electric sign. Redecorating and rearrangement of fixtures marked important changes in the interior.

The interior has been finished in light gray, and new arrangements to take advantage of the light, add to the attractiveness. The salesroom has been shortened, allowing for an extension of the reserve stock room in the rear, and the basement department has been done away with.

Patrons visiting the store at the opening found the salesroom attractively decorated in potted palms and cut flowers in baskets, some the gift of well-wishers. Guy Hutslar, who was associated with Adolph Moser in the former store, is manager of the new store in which Mr. Moser retains his interest. Under the new business policy men's, women's and children's shoes will be handled only at popular prices. The sales staff of the Moser store has been retained.

The new store is an attractive addition to Xenia's business section.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Watkins, of Columbus, Mrs. Dorothy Dinwiddie and family, of Xenia, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Hollingsworth and daughter Joan, of Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. St. John and son Leo, of the Hussey Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kyle and family, of Bridgeport, and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Harness were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Hollingsworth and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fawcett spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller and family, of near Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hemstead, of near Port William, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Stauffer, of near Alpha, and Mr. Chant Ford were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wolary and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Jones and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. Emma Devoe, of Mt. Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForrest Strong spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Noel Johnson, of Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. George Murry and son Louis Eugene, of near Jamestown, and Mr. and Mrs. Moudy Barnett, of near Bowersville, spent Sunday with Mrs. M. A. Strong.

The Loyal Sons' and Daughters' Sunday School classes held their regular monthly social and business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Beal Tuesday evening, with a good attendance. A reading by Miss Louise Johnson and radio music was much enjoyed. Refreshments of ice cream and wafers were served. Next month's meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones.

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car

WILL PAINT STANDS AT FAIR GROUNDS

Minor improvements at the Xenia Fairgrounds were decided upon by the fair board after an inspection and meeting on the grounds Wednesday.

Board officials have concluded to paint the new grandstand, under construction, and the judges stand, white. The judges' stand will also undergo improvements designed to place it in good condition, which may necessitate some re-flooring work.

The location of the stand will not be changed. The new grandstand is rapidly nearing completion as construction work is being pushed forward rapidly.

Rheumatism

Get this relief at once. German and American science has produced Su-thol Tablets which bring quick, safe amazing benefits.

This is one of many who have been helped: "I certainly can recommend Su-thol Tablets for rheumatism, as I suffered for weeks before taking them. Had electric treatments for two months and finally got so bad was not able to walk at all. I took one box of Su-thol and my rheumatism was gone. Also took your Casca-Royal Pills to regulate the bowels. Have never felt so well in my life and I recommended your medicines to my friends. Truly yours, Mrs. Josephine Howard, 332 Blandina St, Utica, N. Y."

The cost is trivial, the results assured. Six 25c tubes in each $1.00 package at leading drug stores.

Do You Have These Symptoms

Folks Near or Past Forty Should Watch These Danger Signs

Dizziness, headaches, shortness of breath, distress after eating, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness and nights of restless misery caused by bad dreams or inability to sleep—these are some of "The Danger Signals" indicating hepatic torpidity, gall stones or gall bladder inflammation.

Thousands of lives have been wrecked and other thousands made thoroughly miserable — because they did not heed these warning signs in time. Women in their "Forties" are particularly liable to these troubles and hundreds who think they have high blood pressure are simply suffering from hepatic torpidity or gall bladder inflammation.

Don't take a chance on gall stones and don't let your system get filled with poison that may cause months or even years of miserable ill health. At the very first warning sign ask Sayre's Drug Store or any other good druggist for "Klax-Ko" tablets and be assured of swift and positive relief or your money promptly refunded. Klax-Ko tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds who thought they had some dangerous internal trouble—and in many instances have saved the pain and expense of an operation for gall stones. Ten days use will convince you of their honest value in your particular case. Try them today!

ANNOUNCING

"HIGH PRESSURE SAM"

A New Comic Strip Serial By "Swan"

GEORGE SWANSON,
Better Known As "Swan"

"SWAN", WHOSE REAL NAME IS GEORGE SWANSON, IS THE CREATOR OF THE WELL KNOWN COMIC STRIP "SALESMAN SAM". IN HIS NEW COMIC HE USES THE SAME CHARACTERS.

No comic in the country has provoked more mirth than the dynamic but dumb salesman, originated and created by "Swan."

Swan's Samuel is a young man of great imagination and ideas, one far-fetched, the other usually wrong.

Sam is in love, seriously in love, and in love with a very attractive and practical 1927 model.

She adores Sam, but love without money looks bad to her. She doesn't mind the cottage, but it must have something within its walls, other than a love-sick swain.

Contrary to the general opinion, the girl believes Sam has something else between his eyes than space and that if she can get some coordination between Sam's brain and his tongue, Sam, home and future will be assured.

$2,000 IS REQUIRED

to win her. Sam, "rarin' to go," has more ideas about getting that $2,000 quickly than a watermelon has seeds.

THESE ARE THE ANSWERS TO THE QUESTIONS ON PAGE FOUR

1. Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the German Zeppelin works, has announced that the L. Z. 127, now under construction, will circle the world in 300 hours in 1928.

2. James Clarkson Gillmore, the last commodore in the United States navy to fly his flag before that rank became extinct, died in Washington, June 14.

3. Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, has promised to reduce the Army of Occupation at the Rhineland bridgeheads to 40,000 men (a reduction of 15,000.)

4. Mexico is about to conclude peace with the Yaqui Indians, who have been in revolt for ten months. The Indians will not be permitted to remain in the Bacatete mountains, but will be given lands in some other part of Mexico.

5. The British foreign office has refused passports to six children by British communists to visit Russia as the guests of the Moscow Young Pioneers.

6. Houdini's death, on Oct. 30, 1926, according to the insurance company which has just paid a claim to his widow, followed a week after he had challenged a McGill university student in Montreal to strike him a hard blow. He did this to prove his excellent physical condition.

clerk in the consulate-general at Cairo, and since then has served in various capacities at Mexico City, Petrograd, Berlin, Vienna, Copenhagen and Berne. Grew was secretary-general of the American delegation at the Paris peace conference; was afterwards minister to Denmark and Switzerland, and functioned as American envoy at the preliminary meetings on reduction of armaments in Geneva and Paris. In 1923 Grew concluded the treaty with Turkey, which now threatens to bulk so conspicuously in connection with his ambassadorial fortunes. As undersecretary of state, Grew was at Secretary Hughes' right hand for a year, and for the past two years he has been Secretary Kellogg's chief adjutant.

Meritorious as Grew's services—and those of a score or more of our other "career diplomats"—have been, it's exactly their type that Vice President Dawes is shooting at. General Dawes holds that these men have either served abroad so long, or become so hidebound in their point of view through strictly technical training for diplomacy, that they are out of touch with American public sentiment. The vice president is especially opposed to the system of promoting "career men" on the seniority basis. He asserts that "seniority in promotion ruins the effectiveness of a peace-time army when thrust into war." By the same token, Dawes argues, American interests in a grave emergency might be fatally jeopardized by "career diplomats" entrusted with responsibility simply because they rose to their places on the seniority ladder.

The vice president did not mention it at St. Louis, but between the lines of his address was a plain protest against the administration's failure to send "big men" to this month's naval conference at Geneva. That international meeting, to which Great Britain and Japan are dispatching outstanding statesmen, is the kind of a gathering at which, in the vice president's estimation, Uncle Sam should have his very best "minds." General Dawes is perhaps under the impression that if mere "career diplomats"—instead of himself, Owen D. Young and Henry M. Robinson—had been assigned the task of settling the German reparations problem in 1924, it might still be unsolved. Businessmen, not "career men" of the foreign service, are obviously, in Dawes' opinion, the most qualified to negotiate those underlying economic issues which are nowadays the bedrock of international relations.

There's a lot to be said on the other side of the question. Diplomacy is often a case of psychology. One set of negotiators has to know, from every angle, the strong and the weak points of the negotiators on the other side of the table. Knowledge on these scores is sometimes just the feather which turns the scales from defeat into victory. At Geneva, when the naval conference is on, Ambassador Gibson's intimate acquaintance with the personalities, backgrounds and viewpoints of the British and Japanese delegates will be of immense value. Mr. Gibson, through long residence in Europe, knows thoroughly the currents and cross-currents of international politics, and will be able to gauge them from occasion to occasion. No merely "big man" from America could possibly be in possession of this information.

Professional politicians long have disliked the "career diplomat" idea. It delivered a knockout blow to the ancient spoils system. In days of old, ministerships and ambassadorships were the plums party leaders dealt in most profitably when sinews of war were needed for campaign purposes.

"SICK-HEADACHES ?"

Torturing, maddening! Most always trace them to a lazy liver, constipation and a sour-sick stomach. Poison of fermented foods retained, instead of passing, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues, it causes congestion and that acute, sickening pain.

Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills quickly and surely remove the cause by stimulating the liver, toning up the bowel-nerves, making the poison-ferments move on and out, thus purifying the blood and curing the headaches. The effect is almost instantaneous.

Women, because of their sensitive organism are especially prone to periodical headaches, should not suffer if a drugstore is nearby—for Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills have helped millions during the past 25 years. Non-secret formula, small, sweet, prompt and "Better Than Castor Oil." Two sizes 15c—40c.

Regain Health this Way

There is a right way to regain health—if you are anemic, weak, nervous and run-down, because of thin, watery blood and deficient gland activity.

The way is easy, pleasant, prompt. It is scientific, for it deals with supplying the elements needed by the system. The method has been used successfully 15 years. The use of Cadomene Tablets has grown to over one million a week, by users telling others how effective the method is. There are people in your own circle who have regained lost health. Your doctor or druggist can tell you of "the miracle-like" recoveries of thin, anemic, weak, nervous-run-down folks.

Take from your food all calcium, phosphorus, iron and magnesium—and you wither and die. Reduce the amount your blood and glands should have, and you soon become afflicted with Nerve Trouble, Gland Trouble, Anemia, Weakness, Digestive Disorders, Infected Teeth, Headaches, Lowered Vitality, Fatigue, a tendency to have "colds" frequently and a general lethargy of mind and body.

The "Balance" or level of your system is upset, due to modern methods of preparing foods from which vital elements have been taken. Cadomene gives back this lost balance promptly. Six to eight weeks' use is time enough to produce a delightful buoyancy of spirit and reserve strength. Simply take three to six tablets daily as per directions.

Cadomene Tablets is not a cheap "catch penny tonic", but an efficient enricher of the blood and a potent strength-inducing agent. Go, try it now. Learn that you can be well and strong. Druggists everywhere sell Cadomene on a guarantee of delightful satisfaction or money back.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By GEORGE McMANUS

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

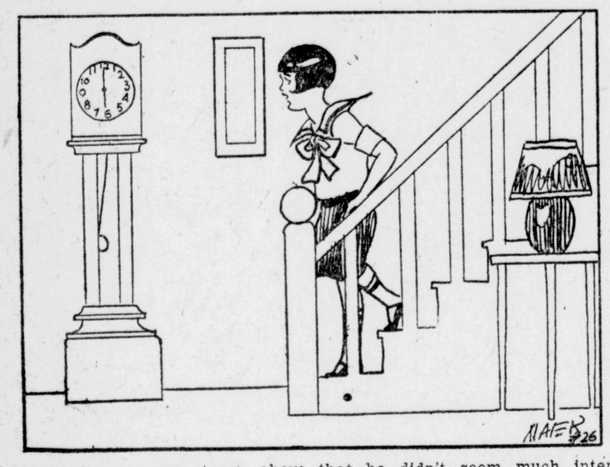

The Rovin' Ritzies
By Flo Frederick

Patsy can scarcely go to sleep Dreaming of ponds, cool and deep!

The morning sun was just peeping through the clouds when Patsy jumped out of bed and started getting dressed. She had been so excited the night before she could hardly go to sleep, and now she was getting up earlier than any other time in her life except Christmas. It almost seemed like Christmas, everything was so quiet and mysterious as she tiptoed down the hall. As she passed Marty's room she chuckled to herself, for her brother was snoring loud and lustily in spite of the fact that he had declared that he would be the first one up to look at the fish pond.

When Patsy thought of the fish pond she could hardly wait until she reached the back yard, but she must go carefully, so as not to wake up mother and father, and so she tip-toed downstairs and out through the dining room.

Would the pond that they had worked so hard on be filled to the top with nice clear water, or would it have all seeped out in the night? It would really hold water, wnat fun they would have with the pretty gold fish swimming about among the water lily that mother had promised! She decided that she would place mossy stones about the edge, a clump of forget-me-nots and——

Patsy's plans were brought to a sudden stop when she at last came face to face with the pond. Oh, it couldn't be true! It would be too mean to have it turn out this way!

She rubbed her eyes to make sure that she wasn't asleep and just having a bad dream, but there was no use trying to fool herself. She knew that she was wide awake and that the pond was leaking water.

To be sure it was more than half filled with water, but that would be expected with so much rain the before. No, there was no doubt about it, the pond was slowly leaking which meant that it couldn't be a home for the gold fish. What would the poor things do in dry weather? They couldn't take a chance on a leaky pond. There was nothing for it but forget all about her wonderful plans for a woodsy pond.

It was a weary little Patsy that trudged back to bed. It was almost as bad as getting up on Christmas morning and finding no Santa Claus or Christmas tree by the fireplace.

Marty went through the same disappointing discovery when his mother's calling brought him to his senses and the realization that he had intended to get up very early.

They were a very silent and disappointed pair as they ate their breakfast and trudged off to school.

At recess time the twins and Betty Ann came running to hear the news about the pond, and could not help feeling blue about this unexpected turn of things. The five Ritzies were sitting on the stone steps of the school house, looking like a very discouraged group when Bill Roscoe, the newest Ritzie club member, approached and asked what was troubling them.

Bill was a Ritzie and had a right to know, and so Marty told him all about their high expectations for the outdoor fish pond and this sudden blow to their plans. Living on the other side of town, Bill did not get over to the Collins' yard so often and this was his first knowledge of the fish pond plans.

He offered no comment after Marty finished his tale and the other Ritzies were about to decide that he didn't seem much interested in their club affairs when he asked a most unexpected question.

"Did you say that your pond was close to the garage?"

"Why, yes," answered the surprised Marty. "What difference does that make? That spot had the most clay in it."

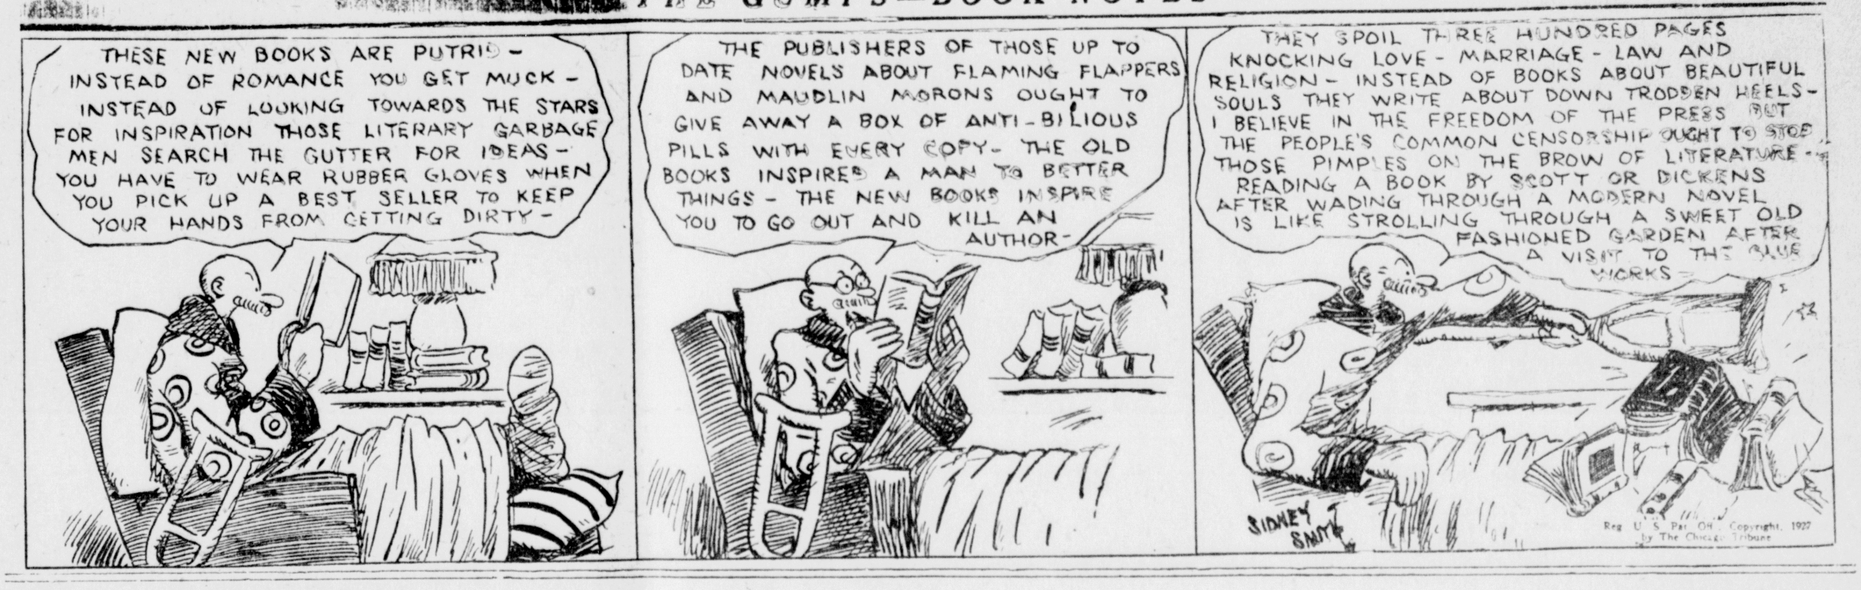

"It may not be any good," answered Bill, quietly, "but I've got an idea. I'll meet you after school and go up and have a look at the pond."

As the bell rang, bringing the recess period to an end, the Ritzies who had tried to make a pond and failed, could not help wondering when they would ever really learn to know their fellow club member. Bill was always so calm about things, and yet it seemed that there was nothing that he couldn't do. Every day they felt prouder of their new Ritzie.

How Bill's idea in saving the fish pond works out will be told in tomorrow's story. Don't miss it!

GASOLINE FILLING STATION OWNERS TO GIVE GOOD MEASURE

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—Owners of gasoline filling stations in Ohio will "toe the line" in measuring out the right amount of gas after June 30, or there will be some fines to pay, according to state weights and measures officials here.

Not that officials are not already doing everything they can to see that motorists in the Buckeye state get their money's worth, but they are just beginning to bear down on a four year old law which heretofore has been almost unheeded by the filling stations, the officers say.

The law, which state officials will use as their main weapon in fighting the short measures, carries with it certain specifications that will make the pumps "fool proof" if heeded by the pump manufacturers and oil companies.

A few of the requirements for pumps installed before Dec. 20, 1926, which will be rigidly enforced are:

The bowl is to be filled at time of delivery.

It is unlawful to operate pump unless safety device is sealed open, with proper added wording or sign to denote open position.

All signs must be conspicuous and placed so that they can be read from a reasonable angle and letters be of a different color than the sign itself.

The sight glass or its equivalent must be provided on all devices where the customer cannot see the complete delivery which includes meters and blind pumps and so placed as to show the customer the flow of gas to the car and any delivery or drainage line to storage.

Visible pumps constructed so that gas goes quickly to car and to storage at the same time when adjustable tube is lowered were eliminated Dec. 20, 1926. Those installed before that date must be made as safe as possible by proper required attachments.

State officials have found the greatest amount of shortages in pumps with the glass bowls which are so equipped that the gasoline can be released from the bowl and will run through the tube to the auto and also into the storage tank at the same time.

A new safety device has been manufactured by pump companies following the specifications made by the state department, and will be used on most pumps with the glass bowl. It is a lever which when closed and sealed makes it impossible for the gasoline to run from the bowl back into the storage tank. The only way gas can be allowed to run back to the storage tank from the bowl will be by breaking the seal and turning the lever.

The law and specifications have never been rigidly enforced, state officials explained, because difficulty was found in persuading the pump companies to manufacture new parts or revamp their models. Several pump companies now have met the requirements after a four year fight and it will now be necessary for the oil companies to purchase new pumps or change the old pump equipment.

BELLBROOK

Deputy Auditor James Curlett was in town Friday testing scales.

Mrs. John Hess' will was probated Thursday.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the M. E. Church next Sunday.

Charlie Mills celebrated his seventy-second birthday last Monday at his place of business, hammering iron and shoeing horses.

J. L. Myers is improving his property on E. Franklin St., by the addition of a sidewalk.

C. C. Austin is the only remaining soldier now living here who enlisted from Sugarcreek Twp., for service in the Civil War.

It is reported that there was two inches of rain-fall here on Monday night.

Thomas Van Camp and other members of the family were in Xenia last Monday on legal business.

Oliver Willis is working in Dayton.

Adrian Fiorini has returned home from Chicago.

Rev. Arthur Griffes has a position in Dayton.

Harry Watson sold two police pups during the past week.

Russell Stockman, who has been playing in the Dayton Police team of the Buckeye League, left this week for Florida where he will become a member of the Southern League.

W. H. Sidenstricker was home for a short time this week.

The first contest between Bellbrook and Osborn took place at Osborn last Sunday, the Bellbrook club winning the opening game by a score of 5 to 3. The second game was taken by Osborn in the first half of the ninth inning when the first and only score found its way to the record. It goes without saying that each member in the two clubs played a fine article of ball. Bellbrook will meet Xenia on the latter's diamond next Sunday for a first setto between the two teams.

Ex-Mayor Elmer Wetzel was the victim of a well-planned birthday surprise on last Thursday evening when about thirty of his Zimmermanville friends rushed in upon him as he was quietly amputating his whiskers and hair in his shaving parlor. Mr. Wetzel was at once notified that he had reached his 42nd milestone in life's journey, and was courteously invited to "cease from his labors" and join them. The evening was pleasantly spent in a good social way with music and other blissful features preceded by a hearty indulgence in ice cream, cake and other seasonable refreshments. Those present to wish Mr. Wetzel many more happy birthdays, and to enjoy the occasion were: Robert Ferguson and family, Lewis Stewart and two sons, Marcus and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Houston and son Raymond, Chas. Stewart and son Ellsworth, Harry Haverstick and daughter Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Macher, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Snyder, George Haverstick, Cash Moore, Russell Zimmerman, Chas. Wetzel, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Koogler, Miss Lizzie Haverstick, and Mrs. Katie Glotfelter.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natlee Jones. Then he becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's, and finds out he is falling in love with her.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because America enters the World war.

Phil's regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and Phil is wounded while on a dangerous mission. Rod is killed trying to save his friend, and Phil receives the croix de guerre for bravery.

While recovering in the south of France, armistice is declared and Phil is sent to Coblenz, Germany. Meeting certain requirements, he is awarded a scholarship in a French university, and returns to Paris.

His mother, not having heard from him for months, decides to go to France to hunt him, and Major Aukland, who is devoted to Anne Tracy, accompanies her. Unexpectedly she comes face to face with her son. The shock proves a great strain on them both, and they soon part—Phil to go to his room and Mrs. Tracy to start on a shopping spree.

Phil comes to breakfast with his mother the next morning and they start to tell each other "all about it." Here the story further unfolds—

"Tell me about Natlee, Mother."

CHAPTER XLIV

TALKING OVER NATLEE

"I THINK that perhaps, son, you have more to tell than I," said Anne Huntington Tracy. "You are too young to show the scars of war, dearest."

Phillip Tracy gave a little nervous shudder which his mother was quick to interpret.

"Not so much happened to me except my waiting and waiting for you. Where shall I begin?"

"Tell me about Natlee, Mother."

"To tell the truth, Phillip, I don't know much about Natlee. I never did know very much about her. I could never get near to her someway."

"She always sensed that you did not like her, Mum."

"Perhaps, Phillip," confessed his mother, "I was always a little jealous of her." As she said this, Mrs. Tracy bent over and lightly kissed the tousled brown head that was lying in her lap.

"You had no need to be jealous of her, dear. She always had the greatest admiration for you and a great desire to please you at all times. Natlee is the finest and sweetest girl I have ever known, Mother mine."

"It is because I have always known that, that I have been afraid of her. Phillip, I have found out since you have been away from me that I was very selfish about you. I wanted you to love me best of all the world, dear.

"We women always want our sons to love us best; we never seem to understand that some girl will come into their lives as we came into the lives of their fathers and we will no more be first in their hearts.

"I presume, dear, that I was never afraid of you really falling in love with any other girl but Natlee. After you had gone we did see more of each other for a while, but always there was a constraint between us.

"She accused me, that morning she came to see me after you had enlisted, of giving my consent to your going because I would rather see you dead, if need be, than married to her."

"Natlee did not say that, Mother, did she?" asked Phil, suddenly sitting up and turning so that he could look at her.

"I think so, dear. I remember that morning very well and I am sure she said these words, 'I have always loved Wynne ever since we were little children. I am not ashamed to tell you this, for today I have a feeling of tenderness toward him that I expect is a part of the maternal instinct born in all girls. That is the reason why I have always taken him back when he has returned to me; that is the reason I shall always be waiting for him'."

Phil clasped his mother's hand with a grip that hurt.

"Then she added: 'I have known since I was 15 that you did not want Wynne to marry me, but I hoped that in time you would see I was perhaps better for him than any other girl he knew. However, after that night of the party I knew it was not to be. I knew that although you would never acknowledge it to yourself, you would do almost anything to separate us.' Of course you can see, Phillip, how this agitated me, for I had to admit that she was right.

"PERHAPS you think it is common for me to talk so plainly about your son to you,' she continued. 'I shall never do it again, and I should not have done it now, if I did not feel that I am in danger of losing him forever.' And then, Phillip, she said this strange thing: 'I love Wynne; I will never love any one else, and I understand him better than any other person in the world, with the possible exception of Rodney Maxwell.'

"We talked quite a while after that, Phillip, for I was a little touched because she said I did not understand you.

"Finally she said: 'Mrs. Tracy, you would not have given your consent to Wynne's enlisting if you had not rather seen him dead than married to me. You are determined that I shall lose him'."

Anne Tracy stopped for a moment and Phil asked, "What did you say to that?"

"I put my arm about her shoulders and answered: 'No, Natlee, I think I let him go to save him for you'."

There was another pregnant silence and then Phil said: "Perhaps it would have been better if you had let us marry before I came away."

"Would you have done that, son, even if I had raised no objections?"

"Perhaps not at that time, but I would have done so any time before—" he hesitated, and then brought out the words—"the party."

Mrs. Tracy blushed. She knew that Phil was thinking of Lyra Hilliard. She would have liked to have denounced her, but she did not know how to do so.

Phil also would have liked to have told his mother about her friend, and his momentary infatuation for her. Instead, he said, "Mother, would you be very unhappy if we made our home in France?"

Mrs. Tracy made such a gesture of surprise that Phil had to take his head from her knee.

"What do you mean, Phillip? Surely you have not become so in love with Paris in a month that you want to give up your own country and live over here! Don't you know that even if I did—for love of you—forsake my home and came to this alien land, Natlee would never do so."

"I do not expect her to do so. I had a letter from Natlee a few days before the armistice in which she told me all about Jerry Kenyon. It was a strange letter, but I gained from it that at last Natlee had grown tired of being 'always waiting for me,' and that she was on the point of accepting a better and more stable man. The letter made me very unhappy for a time, and I went up into the Argonne, hoping that from there I would 'go west'; my life seemed so futile.

"SOMETHING inside of me made me carry on. Although I was half-sick and completely discouraged, that something kept me alive until after the armistice, when at Le Blanc I read of the chance—the remote chance—by which I might come to Paris as a student of the Sorbonne. I am afraid I told a good many lies to get that scholarship, but perhaps the Good God knew that if it were not given to me I would never again be worth anything in this world.

"Anyway, the offer did come to me, and it brought with it another chance for happiness."

Anne Tracy stirred, and Phillip got up and stood before her. She was glad of that, because she was afraid he would feel that she was trembling.

"There are wonderful openings for a young man, Mother, with a little money over here. I know that I will be happier in France."

"Have you written this to Natlee, Phil?"

"Not yet, but I did answer her letter and told her that I could see she had grown tired of waiting and that as I did not know when I should go back to the States, it would not be fair to her to be kept waiting for a man who, with gas, shell shock and wounds, could not measure up to Jerry Kenyon or any of the others who stayed at home."

"Phillip, did you expect Natlee to accept that excuse?"

"Yes. Why not? It was the truth."

"Dear, don't lie to yourself. It was only half the truth. Tell me the whole truth. What is her name?"

Instead of answering directly, Phillip said, "Do you know we have not had breakfast? I'm beastly hungry."

Anne Tracy started to pull the bell cord which was beside her. She had arranged for breakfast at 10 o'clock. Phillip had come earlier.

Before she did so, there was a tapping at her door, and the man brought in the ample breakfast she had ordered the evening before.

While the waiter was arranging it on the table, she slipped into her dressing room and put on a street gown. When she came out she found Phil gloating over the table.

"Good heavens, Mum! Do you want to spend all your money in one place and at one time?" he asked with a smile.

Six strawberries as large as egg plums, from Nice, each one on its little bed of leaves; beside them a dish of Normandy clotted cream, wonderful brioche, unsalted butter, scrambled eggs and coffee with cream and sugar.

Seating his mother quickly, Phil tried to give her three of the strawberries, but she would take only two, after much persuasion.

"I want this, our first breakfast together after the war, to be a happy memory all your life long."

"You'll get your wish, young lady," Phil assured his mother, calling her the name he did at times when he was most pleased at some extravagant thing she had done for him.

Both of them felt better when they settled back with the second cup of coffee and a cigaret. It was then that Anne Tracy asked her son the same question he had asked her an hour ago.

"Tell me all about it, son."

As his mother suspected, Phil is in love again. Read tomorrow how the major finds her in tears.

LINDBERGH FLIES OVER FAIRFIELD

FOUR BURNED FATALLY WHEN HOUSE BURNS

Mother Loses Life Trying To Save Three Children

PORT HURON, Mich., June 17.—Mrs. Stephen Malinske, 34, and her three children, Stephen, 11, Mary, 7, and an infant daughter were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home near here.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in a chicken brooder.

Mrs. Malinske lost her life in a vain attempt to rescue her children, who had been trapped in a bedroom.

The father escaped.

WILE SAYS:

Oppose Grew? Is Career Man Dawes Is Foe Other Angles

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Vice President Dawes' smashing attack on "career diplomats," in a commencement address at St. Louis, has converted the American foreign service personnel into an issue. The next congress is certain to deal with it. In all probability the occasion will be the nomination of Joseph C. Grew, now undersecretary of state, as United States ambassador to Turkey. Mr. Grew's appointment will come under fire, not merely because he is an outstanding "career diplomat," but because the forces that prevented ratification of the Lausanne treaty with Turkey last winter will contend that, without treaty relations, America should not send an envoy to Angora. Anti-administration elements holding this view talk of President Coolidge's "defiance" of the senate in naming a new, full-fledged ambassador, after the senate declined to sanction the pact with the Turks.

Mr. Grew is likely to be singled out in the "career diplomat" controversy because he, in a special degree, typifies the "career" man in our international organization. He has had a long and distinguished record abroad. Next month Grew will complete his twenty-third successive year in the foreign service. He began as a

FLASHES CONTINUE FROM WILDERNESS

QUEBEC, Que., June 17.— The mystery of the supposed flare signals reported to have been seen near St. Germain Twp., in the mountainous wilderness north of the Saguenay river was still unsolved today, but hope that they might have come from the missing French aviators, Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli has almost been abandoned.

Flashes were reported Sunday night, Tuesday night, Wednesday night and again last night.

Doubt is now expressed by supporters of the early theory that Nungesser and Coli were stranded in the northern part of Quebec Province. However, hope has not been abandoned entirely that the men may be found alive in the wilderness.

FIND LEPER CASE

MARTINS FERRY, O., June 17.—Officials here are baffled by what has been reported as a possible case of leprosy contracted by a Greek resident of this city. Federal experts from Washington will be asked from the public health service to confirm the diagnosis. Dr. Mahoney, of the state health department, has also been called here to examine the patient.

MASONS AT MEET

WILMINGTON, O., June 17.—The Knights Templar and Blue Lodge Masons of the second Ohio district, numbering 1,500 were here today for "Templar Field Day" at Wilmington College. Athletic events, a parade and a dance were program features. F. Oscar Schoedinger, fast commander for Ohio, was an official honor guest.

"GORILLA" MAY BE CLUBBER

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN CANADA THOUGHT TO BE OHIO SLAYER

Description Of Man Held In Oregon Also Tallies

WINNIPEG, M., June 17.—Chief of Detectives George Smith and Inspector Philip Stark stated positively today that the man arrested at Killarney yesterday and brought to Winnipeg by special train is the man they want for murdering two women here in Winnipeg.

They state further that from information supplied them by United States Detectives here, they are sure their prisoner is the "gorilla" wanted for at least twenty similar killings in the United States.

Earle Nelson, as he was registered at central police station, Winnipeg, says he was born at San Francisco. Earlier in the day he said he came originally from Lancaster, England, and never had been in the United States. Virgil Wilson was the name given a few hours earlier.

Nelson alias Wilson was apprehended Wednesday night by provincial police at Killarney, Manitoba. He was brought to Winnipeg under heavy guard.

Identification was made by W. E. Chandler, who recently reached Winnipeg after a motor trip from Detroit. Chandler said that on June 8 he had picked up the man five miles north of Warren, Minnesota, and brought him to Winnipeg. Other identification as to teeth marks on victims in the United States are said to be beyond refutation.

TOLEDO, O., June 17.—Police here today revived their hopes that the "clubber" who murdered five women here, and clubbed several others, may be in custody, and the murders may be cleared up, following reports that suspects are being held in Portland, Ore., and also in Winnepeg, Man.

A man giving the name of Adrian Harris, held as a "gorilla man" by Portland authorities, according to early reports to local police, apparently tallies with the meager descriptions available of the Toledo slayer.

Five women, who killings were never solved, were slain by the Toledo "clubber", during the past two years. They were Miss Lily Dale Croy, school teacher; Mrs. Mary Alden, 47, Miss Lydia Baumgartner; Mrs. Emma Hatfield; Mrs. Mary Hadley, 42. A score of suspects have been arrested and examined by police here at various times in connection with the killings, but no evidence was procured to connect any of them definitely with the killings.

BAD WEATHER STILL DELAYING TAKE OFF OF COMMANDER BYRD

Possible Naval Ace Will Not Leave Before Sunday

NEW YORK, June 17.—Bad weather continues to delay the hop off of Commander Richard E. Byrd in the monoplane America for Europe.

It seemed probable this morning that Byrd would not be able to get away before Sunday.

Byrd said he certainly would not take off today.

There are two zones of adverse weather—one of 800 miles in diameter southeast of Newfoundland and the other 1,000 miles west of Scotland, also covering a wide area.

James H. Scarr, local forecaster, said the unfavorable weather is not likely to clear up for two days.

The giant tri-motored Fokker plane is conditioned to go, except for the taking on of gasoline and food supplies which would require only a short time.

PICKFORD TARGET OF PLOT

WARNING FOILS PLANS TO KIDNAP ACTRESS

Home Of Movie Star Under Guard After Conspiracy Exposed—Douglas Fairbanks Guards Wife With Riot Gun

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—A heavily armed guard was stationed around the Beverly Hills home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks today as the result of an alleged plot to kidnap the diminutive actress and hold her for $100,000 ransom.

The guard was thrown around the Pickford estate when H. L. Brady of Palm Grove Ave., reported seeing three men following Miss Pickford. He said the movie star had been posing for street scenes and that when she left in her car, the three men followed in a large sedan.

Brady said as the men passed him he overheard one of them remark:

"There she goes. She'll be worth $100,000 to us."

Hollywood and Beverly Hills police were notified and a guard was immediately thrown around Pickfair, the movie star's home. As she rode home last night from the studio, Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, sat beside her with a riot gun in his lap. Several officers on motorcycles followed a short distance behind the car.

LINDBERGH RESCUED AVIATION FOR U. S. SAY ARMY AIR PILOTS

Fylers In Escort Party Awaiting Trans-Atlantic Ace At Fairfield Praise Youth Who Aroused Flying Interest

WITH LINDBERGH ARMY AIR ESCORT, ENROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, June 17.—"Lindy has rescued aviation in the United States." The war birds of America—those men who will fight the next war in the skies—paid this tribute today to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in recognition of his heroic conquest of the trans-Atlantic ether.

While awaiting a rendezvous with Lindbergh in the skies above Dayton, Ohio, the cream of America's army birdmen declared Lindbergh had awakened the conscience of the American people to the necessity for prompt development of both commercial and military aviation.

The army pilots who flew from Washington to New York with Lindbergh and who were to accompany him from Dayton to St. Louis were of single voice when it came to speaking of Lindy's feat. He put on one fine show, said one bronzed warrior of the skies and his comrades gathered around a mess table echoed "he sure did." To the army birdmen Lindbergh's feat came at a most opportune moment.

America first developed aviation they said and then allowed most of the great nations of the world to come along and surpass it in air strength. It was Lindy, they added, whose feat awakened the people to the necessity for a revival of aeronautics in America and the revival already has gotten under way.

"Lindy has given aviation a boost all over the country," observed Lieut. E. E. "Tiny" Harmon, who flew with the colonel in army air training camps.

"The biggest kick army pilots get out of his feat is the fact that he left New York knowing that if he did get across the ocean he would land in Paris after dark on a perfectly strange field.

"Knowing the danger of such an effort aside from getting over the ocean he just went ahead and did it. That's what gets the pilots. And he's helped aviation everywhere. I know two boys who bought a commercial plane the day before Lindy landed in Paris. They paid for it out of their receipts in three days. It's the same now with all commercial aviation. Lindy has rescued it."

The same sentiment was expressed by Captain Andrew W. Smith, the oldest flying flight surgeon in the army.

"We give him all the credit in the world," said Captain Smith. "Lindy's flight was the biggest boost ever given aviation in this country."

The army's air escort for Lindbergh concentrated at Dayton was composed of twenty-one fast pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, Michigan, six observation planes from Bolling Field, Washington and a half dozen other planes from Wright Field, Fairfield. The army flyers had a rendezvous with Lindbergh in the skies above Dayton for one o'clock, after which they planned to escort him into St. Louis. On his flight from New York to Dayton Lindy was expected to pass over Pittsburgh and Columbus, Ohio. From Dayton to St. Louis the army men planned to follow the national highway passing over Richmond, Greenfield, Indianapolis, Greencastle and Terre Haute, Ind., Marshall, Effingham, and Greenville, Illinois.

ITALY GIVES ROYAL WELCOME TO PINEDO AFTER HIS RETURN

World Flyer May Be Made Head Of Air Service

ROME, June 17.—All Italy is as enthusiastic over Commander Francesco De Pinedo as the United States is over Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

De Pinedo, who has arrived here after completing a four continent airplane flight, is mobbed wherever he appears in public, his admirers refusing to permit him to proceed about his business as he wishes.

The government is giving a great banquet tonight in De Pinedo's honor, when it is understood he will be officially advised of his appointment as chief of staff for aviation.

The Pope will receive the flyer tomorrow and is expected to confre a high honor upon him.

United States Ambassador Fletcher today sent a message to Premier Mussolini presenting the conand the American people on the gratulations of President Coolidge successful conclusion of De Pinedo's flight.

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE VISIT STEAMER AND SURPRISE WIVES

Wives Overjoyed When Long Distance Flyers Join Them—Expect To Accompany Husbands On Rest Of Trip

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, June 17.—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic flyers, paid an early morning surprise visit to their wives today. Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine had arrived upon the liner Berlin which docked shortly before 1:30 o'clock, much earlier than had been expected. Immediately after the steamship had docked the two airmen went on board. As their wives had not expected them until after daylight both were in bed in their cabins.

The meeting was the result of a careful conspiracy, for Chamberlin and Levine had gone to bed in Bremen, announcing that they would greet their wives in the morning. After the crowds had dispersed the two flyers left their Bremen hotel and motored to Bremerhaven and boarded the Berlin.

"You poor darling," was Mrs. Chamberlin's greeting to her husband as he entered her stateroom.

"Oh, you wonderful boy," was the salutation of Mrs. Levine.

Then the doors slammed and the rest of the welcoming was a purely personal affair.

Later the two wives were officially welcomed on the bridge of the Berlin by the mayor of Bremen and American Consul General Hurst of Berlin. Then the photographers had their innings also and Chamberlin and Levine kissed their wives twenty-four times for the benefit of the photographers, doing an osculatory parade march to the tempo set by the ship's officers shouting, "one-two-three-kiss-one-two-three-kiss," with the cameras clicking on the word "kiss."

"Charles is wonderful," said Mrs. Levine in an interview. "You can write that in prose or poetry. He's wonderful. I fainted when he hopped off from New York but now I would gladly fly back with him!"

"I can't describe my feelings," said Mrs. Chamberlin. "It would be foolish to try. I am going to fly or ride on a train or walk with Clarence anywhere he goes in Europe. He shall not get out of my sight.

"I am longing to reach Berlin where years ago I once hoped to study music, but I never had money enough. I am still playing the piano.

"I brought Clarence's dress suit and some clothes." Then she looked at her husband in his worn flying clothes. "I think he needs taking care of. I forgot his shoes and hats though, for I only had two hours to pack."

Henry Schoenhals of New York, an old friend of Chamberlin's arrived on the Berlin as an involuntary stowaway, with $3.17 in his pockets. He had gone to bid farewell to Mrs. Chamberlin and the boat left before he could get ashore. Mrs. Chamberlin paid his fare.

"Clarence and I were the best of pals when he was flying around New York," said Schoenhals. "I'll pay him back immediately."

The two flyers and their wives are flying to Hamburg. Then they will proceed to Madgesburg and will arrive in Berlin this evening.

REPORT SPLIT IN RAIL UNION BODIES

CLEVELAND, June 17.—According to announcement by spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers now in convention here, individual agreements may be formed in the future with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, to supplant the "Chicago agreement" which was ordered terminated several days ago and dies automatically thirty days after the decree.

The "Chicago agreement" has served to hold the two brotherhoods together in their relations with railroad managements since 1913. Termination of the agreement will work no particular hardship, however, in the opinion of H. E. Wills, Washington, assistant grand chief engineer, one of the official spokesmen, who expressed the belief that differences could be adjusted better individually than through one national agreement.

Others declared however, that the action of the engineers might mean that the two unions will here after work independently of each other.

CLEVELAND, O., June 17.—A record-breaking number of entries for the Ohio State men's and women's singles and doubles tennis championships have been received here. The tournament starts June 27 at the Cleveland Tennis and Racket Club.

FLYER PASSES FIELD ABOUT ONE O'CLOCK; NOT SEEN FROM HERE

Escort Planes Join Ace Over Wright Field—Royal Welcome Awaits Aviator When He Reaches St. Louis

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh flew over Wright Field, Fairfield, a few minutes after 1 o'clock, Friday afternoon and headed direct for Dayton, enroute to St. Louis, in his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis."

A number of escorting planes of the fast pursuit division of the army air corps accompanied the trans-Atlantic flier from Dayton to St. Louis, joining him in the air over Fairfield.

NEW YORK, June 17.—With a happy smile and a wave to the assembled throng, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off from Mitchell Field at 8:17 this morning for St. Louis in his famous monoplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

He had planned to make the 900-mile westward flight in ten hours, but it would be just like "Slim" to try and better his record jump from St. Louis to New York of seven hours and fifteen minutes.

More than 2,000 persons including many women, cheered as "we" soared gracefully into the air and headed due west.

"Lindy" executed his take off so quickly that the crowd was taken by surprise. Without easing the monoplane out of the hangar, as is customary, Lindbergh "opened her up" wide and roared out onto the field between two lines of spectators. He shot along for about 100 feet, and then rose sharply at an angle. Within two minutes he was out of sight.

Weather conditions were perfect for the take off. The sky was cloudless and the sun shining.

Just before he took off Lindbergh said he would fly a straight airline course for St. Louis. He said he would encircle New York City, proceeding directly to Columbus, pass over Wilbur Wright Field at Dayton, O., where he is to be met and escorted by twenty-one pursuit planes and that he may fly over Indianapolis.

He will land at Almbert Field, St. Louis, he said, and expects to arrive there at 4:30 p. m., Central time. He hoped to gain two hours by flying straight westward into the sun, he said.

New York's official goodbye was said by Grover A. Whalen, head of the city's welcoming committee.

"I enjoyed my stay and will be glad to come back again," said Lindbergh.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" sailed over Brooklyn, then crossed to New York, circled the Woolworth Building as thousands watched and then headed over the Battery in a westerly direction. Two planes followed him as he flew low over the battery.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The Lindbergh frenzy today had thrown St. Louis into civic hysteria.

"Slim" is coming home.

Nothing else matters. The city has locked its collective rolltop desk and let itself run wild in an orgy of adulation.

Flight bulletins have usurped the place of stock market tickers as St. Louis tensely follows the progress of his flight from the east. The civic enthusiasm which followed the winning of the world's baseball championship last year threatens to become a mere ripple of excitement in comparison with the onrushing wave of emotionalism which will strike the city about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, when the "ace of the Atlantic" will wing his way over the Mississippi River, and glide down over his adopted city.

Never has the city been in such a gala dress. Myriad flags and pictures of "Lindy" and tiny replicas of "The Spirit of St. Louis," hang in every street.

Theaters and cabarets have their special Lindbergh song numbers prepared and ready. Lindbergh placards, buttons, posters, stickers, dolls, hats, shoes and cravats fill the shop windows and flood the streets. New York, it seems, gave this city a few ideas on the importance of such occasions.

COOLIDGE COMES TO CITY TO SUBMIT TO NEWS INTERVIEWS

Fishing Suffers As Coolidge Favors Reporters

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 17.—It was a case of the mountain coming to Mohammet today—if the newspaper men covering President Coolidge in his Black Hills summer white house may be called prophets.

Reversing the original order wherein the press representatives motor thirty-two miles from Rapid City to the state game lodge to cover the president's vacation activities and then motor thirty-two miles back to file the story, Mr. Coolidge agreed to come to the temporary executive offices at Rapid City this morning and submit himself to an interview, subject to the usual restrictions.

Today's press conference will be held in the Rapid City High School in a room circled with blackboards—the executive's office during the summer. Adjoining class rooms house Secretary Everett Sanders, Private Secretary Edward T. Clark, Doorkeeper Pat McKenna, and the stenographers, clerks and messengers who were brought from Washington that the official business of the White House might progress as usual.

Meanwhile, the presidential fishing will suffer until after lunch, to be served at the state game lodge at one o'clock. The lunch was to have been subordinated to a two o'clock press conference—mountain time—but Mrs. Coolidge put her foot down on this disruption of game lodge routine.

Fishing, mentioned above, was held over from Paul Smith's, N. Y., as a Coolidge obsession. Yesterday, the president started his piscatorial efforts at eight a. m., and following an interruption occasioned by an engagement with the movie men and inspection trip to his Rapid City offices, he returned to sink a worm and hook into the rushing, shallow waters of Squaw creek until dark.

AMERICAN STEAMER STRUCK BY BULLETS

PEKING, June 17.—A Standard Oil Company steamship which was carrying United States vice consul Robert L. Smyth from Ichang was under heavy rifle fire between Wuchang and Hanyang, and, while a number of bullets struck the bridge, there were no casualties, said a dispatch received here today.

The American destroyer divisions are holding their usual summer target practice off Chefoo.

Two American submarine divisions are now at Tsingtao while the American cruisers Richmond and Marblehead are at Chilgwangtao.

JUDGE SANCTIONED ACTION IS SAID

CLEVELAND, O., June 17.—George H. Clark, former state supreme court justice and one time Republican state chairman, sanctioned the taking of merchandise from the stock of the bankrupt American Cycle company at Canton, without knowledge or consent of Don Krug, receiver for the concern, according to Krug's testimony in the hearing for Clark before Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver.

Clark acted as attorney for Krug who had given him a key to the company's store. L. C. McGinley, of Akron, who bought the property of the defunct company, noticed on checking up, that some of the merchandise entered on the appraisal list was missing.

Part of this was located at the hardware store operated by Judge Clark's son, John, witnesses have testified. Judge Clark claims that the property was worth only about $137 and that the transfer was made with the consent and knowledge of Krug, the receiver, and with the understanding that his son would pay the full appraised value.

CHILD DROWNS

MIDDLETOWN, O., June 17.—Middletown's first drowning was on record here today, following the death of eight-year-old Wilma May Sexton. She was drowned last night while playing along a concrete embankment of the Miami River. Her playmates said she fell into the water while attempting to retrieve a shoe that had dropped from her foot.

CHRONOLOGICAL FLIGHT STORY GIVEN LINDY

NEW YORK, June 17.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh carries back to St. Louis today a volume containing 150,000 words in dispatches by International News Service concerning his flight.

M. Koenigsberg, president of International News Service, presented the handsomely bound record of Lindbergh's exploit to him at Lindbergh's apartment last evening.

"This volume is a tribute to you, sir, to your character, your fine American manhood, your peerless courage and unequalled skill," said Mr. Koenigsberg.

"From the day you prepared in San Diego, to hop off for New York until the sun set last Monday upon New York's greatest day of celebration — everywhere you went were I. N. S. men.

"They watched you narrowly, with cold and disillusioned eyes, used to finding cracks in public idols. They looked for flaws in you. To their amazement they found none. They all love you.

"They wrote of you with freedom of reservation that I have not seen equalled in my time, and that is a tribute you may prize as coming from the hard-boiled, whose very business it is to be dispassionate and analytical."

Lindbergh replied:

"Reporters are hard-boiled all right."

He added quickly:

"But they certainly have co-operated with me. I guess they are only hard-boiled on the surface."

Mr. Koenigsberg told Lindbergh that no single individual ever caused so many words to be sent over press association wires within so short a space of time—a record that perhaps Lindbergh did not know he held. He told the famous flyer the volume was presented "out of gratitude to the maker of the perfect news story."

The volume contains an exact reproduction of the dispatches carried over International News Service wires, from the day Lindbergh hopped off from San Diego until his triumphal return to New York. It is entitled, "The Saga of Colonel Lindbergh."

RESTRAIN MINERS FROM INTERFERING

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—Miners of sub-district No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, today were under orders from federal district court here prohibiting them from interfering with employes of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., in their operations at Adena, Jefferson County.

A temporary injunction was issued by Federal Judge Benson Hough, on application of attorneys for the local concern here late yesterday, as an aftermath of disturbances which have occurred in Adena during the past week, and which were climaxed by an appeal from the mayor of the town to Governor Donahey for state troops to maintain order.

Sheriff W. T. Allison, of Jefferson County, however, denied to the governor that there was any serious disorder, said that troops were unnecessary, and indicated that he was in position to maintain complete order.

Hearing on a motion to make permanent the restraining order has been set for next Thursday, and it was indicated that attorneys representing the miners' union would appear in opposition.

Partners Run Amuck!! Forget Tire Prices!! Profits Forgotten!!

As I snuck in the back way to gather material for this week's ad I heard loud voices and the heavy dull thumps of something or other which sounded like heavy fists landing on the cheek-bones of truck drivers! As I snuck nearer I found that these sounds were being caused by the unloading of thousands of NEW TIRES in the back room.

There were over THREE CARLOADS OF 'EM!

The two partners along with five helpers and three bookkeepers were trying to sort these tires out sos they could put PRICES on them. Just at that moment the pet eagle got to quarelling with Prosperity's tame lion and the sheets containing the prices and the COSTS were chewed up in the melee!

The partners LAUGHED!

"Now we can have a REAL TIRE SALE," says Carroll.

"Call Shorty in here and have him get up an ad telling Greene County citizens all about it," yells Prosperity.

"Call out the fire department," says Bunty.

Just then I comes in and they all hopped on me at once! Having heard the excitement and realizing that it requires a plenty WORK to get up a big ad I does everything in my vocabulary to get 'em to lay off such foolishness. The more I talked the more sure the two partners were that they wanted a big ad and a BIG SALE!

The result was that I went on home and haven't showed up since! If they want to make chumps out of themselves by pulling a TIRE SALE at a time of year when EVERY ONE IS BUYING TIRES ANYWAY by gosh they ain't going to make me any party to it! Nussir!

So I'm not going to say one word about their nutty idea at all. I'm just going to let nature take its course and if the citizens of this county want to impose on these poor dodos by getting their TIRES AT COST or LESS certainly it's not going to be held again ME!

These three car loads of TIRES MUST be sold by July First so Carroll says. And Prosperity AGREES WITH HIM!

There sure is more than ONE WAY to act dumb, if you gather what I mean.

Miss Elsie Canby Heads Xenia B. P. W. Club

Miss Elsie Canby, Greene County court stenographer, was elected president of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, at the annual meeting, at First Reformed Church, Thursday evening. She succeeds Miss Henryetta Logan, who has efficiently filled the office two years and was recently elected state treasurer of the B. P. W. Clubs.

Miss Canby is one of the charter members of the Xenia club and has taken an active interest in the organization. Mrs. Clara L. Reutinger was elected vice-president; Miss Helen Graham, secretary; Miss Lorena Paullin, corresponding secretary; Miss Helen Hurley, re-elected treasurer and Miss Stella Tuhey, assistant treasurer.

A delicious dinner was served at 5:45 o'clock by women of the Reformed Church. The tables were effectively appointed with summer flowers and yellow candles. Annual reports were given after dinner by officers and standing committees.

Miss Logan announced that members are to pay their dues by July 1, to avoid the Federation penalty.

FORMER XENIAN IS MARRIED IN NEW YORK

Miss Marianne Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, Cedarville, O., and Mr. George William Confer, son of Mr. H. T. Confer, Dayton, O., formerly of Xenia, were married Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock at the Little Church Around the Corner, New York City.

They were accompanied by Mrs. F. A. Lott, sister of te bridegroom, and Mr. Gordon Hammond, both of Dayton.

After the ceremony the young couple will motor through the East, returning home by way of Baltimore, Washington and other points of interest.

Mrs. Confer has been employed for the last year and a half in the office of the N. C. R., Dayton. Mr. Confer is an auto salesman for the Dodge Brothers Co., at Dayton. They will be at home to their friends after July 1, at 715 N. Broadway, Dayton, O.

Two prenuptial parties were given for the pleasure of Mrs. Confer last week. Thursday evening, June 9, Mrs. Seth Thomas, Dayton, entertained with a miscellaneous "shower." During the evening linen towels were hemmed. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received by the bride. Guests were present from Cedarville, Spring Valley and Dayton.

Monday evening, June 13, Mrs. F. A. Lott, Dayton, O., received twenty guests in honor of Mrs. Confer. The evening was spent with sewing and games. Dainty refreshments were served.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS GIVES FLAG DAY PROGRAM

Following its annual custom of observing Flag Day, Lewis Post Women's Relief Corps presented an appropriate program at the Corps rooms in the Court House, Tuesday.

A group of youngsters took part, including Marian and Marie Kafory, who gave violin and piano selections; Robert Dewey, a recitation and Betty McKay, a reading.

The program was completed with patriotic songs by the audience.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED AT KID PARTY.

As a complete surprise to the guests was the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Velma Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, near New Burlington and Mr. John Kenney, of Springfield, which was disclosed at a "kid party" entertained by Miss Kathryn Conklin at her home on Home Ave., Thursday evening.

The guests were given cards bearing the names of Miss Davis and Mr. Kenney and July 16, as the date of their marriage. The cards were found at each cover during refreshments, concealed in a tiny pink baby shoe, containing animal crackers. A color scheme of pink, white and green was used, with the living room transformed into a nursery.

Each guest was dressed in juvenile costume and music and childhood games furnished amusements.

The guests of the evening included the Misses Velma and Mabel Davis, Helen, Aletha and Josephine Conklin, Martha Van Tress, Dorothy and Helen Lackey, Alma Mendenhall, Rowena and Mildred McKay, Kathryn Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vandervort, Messrs. John Kenney, James Beam, William Pond, Robert Gegner, Elwood Smith, Bernard Haines, Leon Mills, Theodore McIntire, Erba Beason, John Baugh, Charles Kohler and Alan Mendenhall.

MARJORIE STREET RECITAL APPLAUDED.

Music patrons who filled the Dayton Woman's Club, 225 N. Ludlow St., Dayton, Thursday evening, were delighted with the technique of Miss Marjorie Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Street E. Third St., Xenia, and pupil of Mrs. Robert McClure, Dayton.

Miss Street's playing showed the excellent coaching of Mrs. McClure and each number on her program was enthusiastically received by the patrons. Miss Street received many floral tributes from friends for her recital.

Assisting in the program was Miss Louis Street, sister of the pianist and an accomplished cellist. Miss Lois Street is a student of Alfred Hein, Dayton and her playing shows promise.

BRIDE-ELECT GUEST OF HONOR AT PARTY

Miss Dorothy Scarff, S. Detroit St., entertained members of Mrs. Warren Clouse's Sunday School Class, First M. E. Church, with a miscellaneous "shower" honoring Miss Mabel Fawcett, Thursday evening.

Fifteen young women were entertained. Contests, games and music amused the guests. Miss Fawcett, a bride-elect, received many gifts. Pink and white were employed in the refreshment appointments.

Miss Fawcett's marriage to Mr. Willard Long, this city, will take place the latter part of the month.

FREESE-KEITER NUPTIALS IN DAYTON

At their own home on Point View Ave., Dayton, Miss Thelma Freese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Freese, 311 St. Paul Ave., Dayton and Mr. Charles Keiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Keiter, Stone Road, south of Xenia, were united in marriage Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Sixty-five guests, relatives and friends, witnessed the pretty ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Niswonger, High St., U. B. Church, Dayton, officiated.

Mrs. Mildred Lutz, Dayton, played the wedding march and accompanied Mrs. Foy Coffelt, Xenia, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," before the ceremony.

The attendants were Mrs. Russell L. Snyder, Dayton, bride's attendant; Mrs. Herbert E. Wigger, Dayton, matron of honor; Mr. Robert Copeland, Xenia, best man and little Miss Margaret Wigger, flower girl. The bride and her attendants formed a procession through the reception rooms and the vows were taken in the living room. The double ring ceremony was performed.

The bride's gown was of white brocaded satin, and her veil of tulle was caught cap-fashion and formed a train. She carried bride's roses. Mrs. Snyder wore orchid, Mrs. Wigger, yellow and little Miss Wigger, a blue frock.

A two course supper was served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Keiter left Friday morning for the Great Lakes to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Keiter is head bookkeeper at the Hoefler-Stocklein Co., dealers in coal and building materials, in Dayton.

The bride is a graduate of Lewisburg High School, class of 1922 and Mr. Keiter graduated from Xenia Central High School in 1923 and also Miami-Jacobs, Dayton.

SECOND U. P. CHURCH TO SERVE DELEGATION

Women of the Second U. P. Church will serve dinner at 5:30 o'clock in the church basement Monday evening, June 20, for the Newark Y. M. C. A. delegation, to be entertained in Xenia Monday afternoon.

Mayor John W. Prugh will give the address of welcome and clubs of the city will be represented. Anyone wishing to dine with the Y.M. C. A. guests are asked to notify J. H. Nagley by calling 806M not later than 9 a. m., Saturday. The Newark delegation is making an educational tour of the state with Xenia included in its itinerary.

CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Walter Chandler entertained the "Four-H Clover" Sewing Club Friday afternoon. A business meeting was held during the forepart of the afternoon, followed by refreshments and a social time. Mrs. Cliff Mawwell entertained the club last Friday.

AFTERNOON PARTY FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Invitations had been sent to all former and present club members, to attend the meeting of the Caesarcreek Busy Bee Sewing Club, at the home of Mrs. R. B. McKay, Wilmington Pike, Wednesday afternoon, as the party was held in honor of Miss Martha Van Tress, bride-elect.

After the business meeting, a gift was presented to the honor guest, by Miss Helen Smith, in behalf of the club. Refreshments were served the fifty guests.

SCOUTING

Local Boy Scout troops cleared $30 from the benefit motion picture show at the Bijou Theatre Thursday afternoon and evening, an amount sufficient to purchase suitable prizes for the annual Scout Field Day exercises at Shawnee Park Wednesday, June 22, according to Scoutmaster R. H. Kingsbury.

The advance ticket sale was made on short notice. Scouts wish to take this opportunity to thank merchants for contributing to the page advertisment appearing in the Evening Gazette and Morning Republican, announcing the show.

Scoutmaster Kingsbury wants volunteer workers to assist in painting the scout cabin, north of the athletic field Friday night. Volunteers should report at 7 o'clock for an hour of work.

FACES TRIAL FOR ASSAULT CHARGE

Trial of William Finley, 37, Beavercreek Twp., on a charge of assault and battery, was fixed for Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, after he had pleaded not guilty before Probate Judge S. C. Wright, Friday morning. His bond was set at $500.

Finley was arrested by Constable Jacob Stewart who is also Common Pleas Court bayliff. He is alleged to have assaulted his wife during a quarrel at their home north of Zimmerman Thursday afternoon.

ADDRESS HEARD

Professor John Horton discussed the subject "Some Fundamentals of Education," in an address during the commencement exercises of Antioch School on the Mills lawn in Yellow Springs Thursday night.

COUNTY CLUB RALLY AT LONDON JUNE 22

Greene County's 4-H Club rally will be held at the London Prison Farm, London, Wednesday, June 22.

On that day all Greene County club members, leaders, parents and friends are invited to go on this trip which will be in the nature of an education tour and picnic.

Some places of interest that will be visited are: the dairy barns, fish hatcheries and county experiment farm.

Club officers are anxious to have just as many make the trip as possible. The distance is about thirty-five miles. Directions are: "Go to the square in London, turn to the left and go north until you come to the main entrance on the left side of road." Each family, club or group will take their dinners.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE WAITING SOUL:—Truly my soul waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation. He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence. Psalm 62:1,2.

NEW USE FOR IDLE BOATS

The suggestion that now that Colonel Lindbergh has demonstrated the practicability of trans-oceanic flying, the idle hulks which the Shipping Board has failed to incorporate in our merchant marine should be utilized as supply stations for an all-American trans-ocean air service is made by Edward Marshall in "Forbes Magazine."

"The really great achievement of Charles A. Lindbergh," emphasizes Mr. Marshall, "will be to wake up business men to the importance and efficiency of air-transport. It occurs to me that the calm, cool-headed, smilingly splendid boy who flew the 3,610 miles between New York and Paris in 33½ hours, was, in fact, America's greatest commercial traveller, its most notable bank messenger. Lindbergh's significance to business seems greater than that of any mercantile or financial magnets on either side of the Atlantic.

Mr. Marshall feels that it is reasonable to believe that Lindbergh's oversea flight will indicate to progressive men and governments that trans-ocean air mail must be an enterprise to be undertaken before long.

"Surely it would be an immense stimulant to international business," he says, "if Lindbergh's time between New York and Paris could even be approximated by regularly flying Air Mail planes. And if Lindbergh did the thing once, why should it not be done daily? The transcontinental Air Mail and its success, plus Lindbergh, seems to answer that inquiry."

Such a service to be followed by a trans-ocean passenger line, Mr. Marshall believes, might provide a usefulness for those idle vessels of the Shipping Board. He asks, "Why should not these war-time hulks be anchored in a line at intervals across the sea, a matter long since shown by oceanographers to be a possibility, and thus be utilized as guaranteed of safety and supply stations for an all-American transocean air service?"

The Way of the World

By Grove Patterson

NO SHORT-CUT TO BRAINS

Said George Eliot: "There is no short cut, no patent tram-road to wisdom. After all the centuries of invention, the soul's path lies through the thorny wilderness which must still be trodden in solitude, with bleeding feet, with sobs for help, as it was trodden by them of old time."

Strange, is it not, that despite all the labor-saving devices, all the washing machines, automobiles and fireless cookers on the face of the earth, the great experiences of life which make men and women bigger and better must come just as hard as they did. The way to real worth, to actual greatness, is no easier. The things to be added to life which give it real meaning and purpose and which alone make it worth living in the larger sense, must come just as they always have. All the automatic machinery in the world cannot give the soul of man something for nothing.

LABORING AND WAITING

"The path or glory is barred hog-tight for a man who does not labor while he waits," William Allen White says. When White went to Emporia, Kansas, 7 years ago, he and his family had only a dollar and a quarter in cash. He borrowed all the money with which to buy a country newspaper. Today, by studying people and loving people, plus an unlimited portion of hard work, he has reached the place where he can get a big enough price for everything he writes to make him a rich man. He labored while he waited.

Chewing gum, barred from sale on the ships of our navy 15 years ago, is back in good standing. Scientists and students of history may now determine whether this is an indication of human progress or merely a change of habits.

WE HATE TO THINK

Sir Joshua Reynolds, great painter, once wrote a line which told a great deal of truth about all of us. He said: "There is no expedient to which a man will not resort to avoid the real labor of thinking."

It is so easy to accept opinions ready made, to agree with the last man we talk to, to fall in line and march with the crowds just because everybodyis going that way.

It takes courage to be inconsistent and different. It takes nerve to proceed on our own convictions.

How to Achieve Beauty

DANDRUFF AND GRAYING HAIR

Today we are going to consider dandruff. Extreme cases of dandruff often lead to baldness and for this reason it is considered a serious scalp disease. Dandruff is an infectious germ and it may be transferred by the use of infected combs, hair pins, towels and even hat linings. However, like other diseases it seldom makes much progress with healthy tissues, but if it finds a scalp that is unhealthy or neglected it settles down for a long stay.

As soon as dandruff symptoms become apparent, it is time to get busy and try to check them by the right sort of treatment. If it is taken in time it may be checked. Eternal vigilance may be necessary ever after, to effect a complete cure, but it is well worth the effort for there is nothing more humiliating than to have one's clothing continually covered with white scales and broken hair, or to suffer a partial loss of your hair.

The first noticeable symptom of dandruff is the presence of soft greasy scales on the scalp and I would advise that you consult your physician at once and let him treat you for the trouble whether it is local or general. In the meantime shampoo the hair once a week with your herbal shampoo, after which you should apply a good dandruff lotion. If you find the condition does not improve then you should by all means undergo a series of local treatments at the hands of a specialist.

In regard to gray hair let me say that no woman should naturally turn gray before fifty; one of the best ways to prevent premature grayness is stimulation which is caused by frequent brushing and massage. The following lotion is also helpful in preventing hair from turning gray. Apply a little to scalp once a day if an occasional gray hair is beginning to make its appearance: Sulphur, 1 ounce, bay rum, 4 ounces.

KELLYGRAMS

by FRED C. KELLY

A CURE FOR TRASHY READING

Teachers in a preparatory school for boys were disturbed recently by reports that their students were neglecting assigned reading and were squandering their money on trashy magazines such as today infest most news stands.

They held a conference to decide what to do. One suggestion was to appeal to the town authorities to stop the sale there of all magazines not approved by the school. But they abandoned that as too presumptuous a form of censorship.

Then a young instructor, whose views had not been sought, inquired:

"What would be the matter with using the objectionable magazines for reading in class?"

Everybody looked startled for a moment, and then the notion began to sink in that here was a cagey suggestion.

The plan is now being carried out and the English classes regularly read trash as part of their assignments. Having read such stories, students are asked to discuss them, just as they might any other piece of literature. They tell in class just what seems to make each story interesting—what merits must have led the editor to accept it for publication.

When the story plots were thus picked to pieces the boys were surprised to discover that they weren't very interesting after all, but evidently intended for a sucker clientele not capable of judging good from bad. They learned that far more exciting stories, with real human beings for characters, were available in a nearby public library.

Investigation at news stands and stores where magazines were sold showed a big falling off in demand from student customers.

All of which brings up the question: What makes good literature good?

Probably the same thing that makes good music good—and that is wearing quality.

Music dealers who sell talking machine records know that if they can induce a customer to buy two or three records, that have stood the test of time, he will enjoy his machine and keep on buying records. The delights of music will grow on him. But the customer who carries home only a few samples of current jazz gradually becomes fed up and quits buying any music at all.

Perhaps the cure for trashy reading is to give readers a chance to have all they want of it. Then they will outgrow it.

Keeping HEALTHY

by Dr. A. F. Currier

HOSPITALS WITH MODERATE CHARGES

The matter of being sick now-a-days is a very serious affair not only from the physical standpoint, the worry, the anxiety, the disturbance of the household affairs, but the enormous pecuniary outlay which it involves.

If there is a nurse, or two of them, for many nurses are unwilling to do more than the minimum which trades union laws prescribe, there is one large item of expense.

The bill for medicines in many illnesses is a huge one, for I know of no medicines of any importance that are cheap.

Then there are special diet, extra laundry, and if the case is a surgical one, a large outlay for dressings and other surgical requirements.

Last of all comes the doctor's bill or perhaps two of them, if a surgeon or a consultant has been necessary, and that is sometimes enough to frighten anybody except a millionaire or a high wage mechanic.

If all this procedure has to be carried on in an apartment, with no extra rooms for such emergencies, it is easy to see how extremely difficult the situation becomes, and it is conceivable that in some cases it might affect the outcome of the sickness.

In many instances, therefore, if sickness, the ever unwelcome visitor, comes, the only recourse is the hospital.

Fortunate it is that in these times there is scarcely a community of any size that is not provided with some kind of a hospital large, or small, good, bad or indifferent.

Hospitals are increasing in number, in quality and in price. There are many supplies in hospitals which are essential, they cannot be dispensed with if the hospital is run properly.

There are also a great many things which are superfluities, which could be cut down or cut out altogether.

I believe it is possible to run a hospital successfully and economically, but I have not seen many hospitals which are so run. The argument often advanced is, the public pays the bill—hang the expense!

Now, rigid economy should be the watchword with all who live off the public and spend the people's money, but it is not, that is it is not generally, and hospitals are not very often exceptions to the general rule.

Hence the expense of going to a public hospital is often unduly burdensome. The very rich can meet any demands which may be made of them, the very poor pay nothing, their bills are met by the tax payer.

But what of the intermediate class, clerks, bookkeepers, salaried officials of the minor grades and many others?

A sickness of a few weeks or months can easily eat up a year's salary. And so there is a demand for hospitals in which the charges will not be burdensome and overpowering.

I read of one which is to be started soon in a county not far from New York in which the charges are not to exceed $25 per week.

Even that is too much; in the case of a chronic invalid or an aged person that means $1,300 a year, just for hospital charges. That is a subject which is worthy of much discussion and careful thought, for it affects the welfare of thousands and hundreds of thousands of good citizens.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

TOMATOES A LA PARMA

Eight medium sized tomatoes, two ounces of spaghetti, half-pint of shrimps, small lettuce, cucumber, two tablespoons of mayonnaise, beetroot, small cress.

Skin the tomatoes, cut a round out of the tops and scoop out all the pulp. Cut the lettuce and cucumber into small squares. Boil the spaghetti with a teaspoon of salt in water until quite soft, then drain and cut into inch lengths and let it get quite cold. Well flavor some mayonnaise sauce, mix lightly into it the shrimps, spaghetti, cucumber and lettuce, fill the tomato cases with this mixture; sprinkle over the tops some chopped chervil; cut out some rings of beetroot with a crinkled cutter and lay one on top of each tomato with a sprig of chervil stuck in the center. Sprinkle mustard and cress with a little oil, vinegar, pepper and salt, lay it upon a dish and stand the tomatoes upon it.

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"The methods by which modern business is transacted are intricate. To comprehend their intracies and to appreciate their significance, men must have business training. In an involved bankruptcy case, a jury of business men is vitally necessary. Yet the men who are best qualified to serve, ask to be excused; and too frequently the judge, weary of continual insistence on the citizen's performance of his duty, excuses the competent business men jurors and permits the shipping clerk, the taxi driver and the business failure to try the case."—United States District Judge John C. Knox.

"The transatlantic flights of Captain Lindbergh and of Chamberlin have demonstrated the feasibility of aviation as a factor in commerce. The time will come when it will be as easy to fly over the land as the sea. Air mail commerce with Europe is in sight. Congress should be back of these pioneers in this wonderful development that is coming."—Representative T. W. Harrison.

"The American people use annually as much powder as all the rest of the world put together. Our output is five times that of Germany, seven times that of France, nine times that of Italy, and ten times that of England. Our annual production of electric energy has increased in the past seven years from 34.9 billion kilowatt hours to 68.1 billion kilowatt hours, a gain of approximately 100 per cent."—Representative Charles A. Eaton.

"There is something that Second Liberty Loan bondholders ought to know: the secretary of the treasury has announced that he will exchange at par Second Liberty Loan bonds, bond for bond, for a new issue of United States bonds maturing in twenty years, callable not earlier than sixteen years from June 15 and bearing three and three-eighths per cent interest."—Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury.

"I believe in love but not in sex as that word is understood on Broadway. I do not believe in promiscuity or license, and I have never taught nor glorified it in any of my books. In Floyd Dell's biography, which is about to be published, I am described as "fundamentally a Puritan."—Upton Sinclair.

"The nicest part of America is the American part. It is the indigenous expression of America, such as the terraced skyscrapers which approximate so strongly, and without intention, to old terraced pyramids of the Maya and Aztec civilizations, that matter to the world. That America should become a richer, but second-rate Europe, would be a disaster. The soil of America must work out its own destiny."—Osbert Sitwell, English author.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 17.—O. O. McIntyre under erroneous impression that John Farrar is out of a job. There is the type of man who waits until he thinks his opponent is strapped to the boards and then goes up and gives him a swift kick. And there is the journalist who waits until he thinks a man is gagged and then he blats. Thus McIntyre:

"There seems nothing bright in the prospectus (sic) of what is to me the dullest of all publications—the Bookman. The editorship has passed from John Farrar. . . . Farrar is one of these poetical pale blondes (sic) who seems to have achieved nothing on the job save prying a few lines of publicity for being the youngest magazine editor. The sorriest young printer's boy might have filled the job capably."

Very well, ignoring McIntyre's ignorance of the dictionary and his ugly syntax:

McIntyre is a cadaverous, sour-faced hack, a former hotel press agent who dresses like a Negro sheik from the Harlem black and tan belt. He lives in silken ease in a suite at the Ritz Carlton by writing pieces, designed to flatter the small town men, about how he yearns to be back slopping the pigs in Plattsburg, Mo., and by stealing the ideas, phrases and whole paragraphs of brighter and worthier men.

He flatters those in power, particularly bootleg kings, night club hostesses and shimmy shakers. Among the most eloquent tributes he has ever written were anthems in praise of Texas Guinan, a $2,000-a-week night club hostess, frequently in the toils of the prohibition law, and to Gilda Gray, who gets as much as $14,000 a week for shaking her hips. He rarely writes a paragraph that does not seem calculated to get him something, whether it is the deduction of a cover charge in a night club, a reduced rate on an ocean liner, or a commission for a magazine article.

Mr. Farrar is not being thrown out of a job, as McIntyre mistakenly assumed when he wrote that paragraph (he would not have written it, I believe, if he thought Mr. Farrar could retaliate). Mr. Farrar is the editorial director of the George H. Doran company, a publishing house which lists H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole, Frank Swinnerton, Irvin S. Cobb, Compton Mackenzie, Michael Arlen, Mary Roberts Rhinehardt, George Barr McCutcheon, Robert W. Chambers, P. G. Wodehouse, T. E. Lawrence, Du Bose Heyward, Aldous Huxley, Hervey Allen, Thomas Burke, Cyril Hume, Floyd Dell, Osbert Sitwell, Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Conan Doyle. If "the sorriest young printer's boy" could be editorial director of a list like that then this very Odd McIntyre could bat for Babe Ruth.

Mr. Farrar has no less than nine books to his credit, three of which are of very charming verse for children and adults. He writes fiction and essays for such worthy publications as the Woman's Home Companion, McCall's, and the Ladies' Home Journal. He has had two plays produced on Broadway. He is a lecturer much in demand throughout the country. He is an instructor in journalism at New York University. He conducts a summer school in the art and technique of writing. He was a first lieutenant in the U. S. Air Service during the war. He is married and has a son. And he is only 31 years old.

Oscar Odd McIntyre is 43 years old. Though affluent and without offspring he had no war record even as a Liberty Loan orator. And, though he has been a writer most of his life, he has published but one book, which was so roundly slated by the reviewers and so generally ignored by the public that Oscar Odd has had ever since a grudge against anyone remotely connected with or interested in books.

These writers who continue to live in New York and yet who are always writing about what a hellhole it is and how much happier they would be if they were in Gumbo, Mississippi, burn me up. There are trains leaving for the west, north and south out of New York every four minutes. I did not like living on the Island of Manhattan, and so I moved to the suburb of Mamaroneck. But I go into the city every week day, and if I did not like it I would go elsewhere.

I have earned my living as a farm hand. I have picked cotton, pitched hay, dug potatoes, chopped corn, plowed land, rounded up cattle, chopped and corded wood, and helped at hog killing time. I have run a candy, a hot-dog and lemonade concession at a county fair. I have sold shoes in a small town. I have worked in a cotton gin. Those jobs were all right; but if I liked any one of them better than the job I have, that would be the job I would go after.

And, if you ask me, my suspicion is that those who write otherwise would do the same.

One summer I chopped sugar cane on a farm. The temperature was about 120 in the shade most of the time. The cane was sticky and the chaff got mingled with the sweat of my body and itched and burned and irritated my skin. Slivers of the cane cut the flesh of my left hand and made it bleed. I worked from six in the morning until sundown at night and sundown came very late. If I said I would rather be back chopping sugar cane instead of sitting on a nice, comfortable, shaded porch in my shirt sleeves, with a pitcher of lemonade at my side, writing this, I'd be a—you know what.

That is not to say that I do not yearn at times to burst open a watermelon and eat out the heart as it lies in an open field, go 'possum hunting or chase jack-rabbits, go swimming in a deep, clear pool after riding horseback all afternoon, and do other things in kind that are impossible to a New Yorker except for a few days out of the year. And sometimes I even wish I had the appetite I developed about supper time after plowing all day. But I would prefer to satisfy that appetite at almost any restaurant in New York. A farmer I used to work for always had boiled salt pork, lima beans, corn bread, sorgum molasses, and chickory coffee, and no vegetables or variation for supper.

XENIA IMPROVING POSITION IN QUOIT LEAGUE STANDING

Dayton Riverdale continues to show the way in the Miami Valley Quoit League with the N. C. R. team of Dayton in second place.

Xenia is in fifth position but is pressing closely on the heels of the Shrine Club and has an excellent opportunity to better its position by winning its next match with the N. C. R. Monday night here.

League matches Monday night resulted in Xenia and Riverdale breaking even in eighteen games, Eastwood defeating Tipp City 11 to 7 and in the N. C. R. beating the Shrine 6 to 3 the first shift. The second shift was postponed on account of rain.

League Standing:

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.
Riverdale	72	36	.666

SPRING VALLEY IS LEADING TRIANGLE LEAGUE STANDING

Bowersville Bayliffs, disputing second place in the Triangle League with Wilmington, have an excellent chance to go into a tie for first place in the game with the league-leading Spring Valley nine on the Wilmington diamond Sunday afternoon. Play will be called at 3 p. m.

Spring Valley has a slim grip on the top position, one full game ahead of the Bayliffs and Wilmington. The latter clubs are tied for second place.

As the game Sunday will be the only meeting between the two teams this season, the Bayliffs are counting upon making the most of the opportunity.

Following is the league standing:

Team.	W.	L.
Spring Valley	5	2
Bayliffs	4	3
Wilmington	4	3
Waynesville	3	4
Woodmen	3	4
Jamestown	2	5

FIFTEEN ENTRANTS IN HAMILTON RACES

Fifteen cars are entered in the auto races on the Hamilton, O., speedway Sunday, June 26, piloted by some of the country's best dirt track drivers including Bill McCoy, Dempsey Chaney, George Hiller, Don Campbell, Ira Hall, Joe Elliott and many others.

The races will start at 3 p. m., promptly and keen competition is in prospect over the fastest half-mile track in Ohio.

ELEPHANTS WITH CHRISTY SHOW

Miss Jumbo and Clara are two of the elephants with the Christy Bros. circus, which will offer two performances here Saturday afternoon and evening at Ringer's show grounds, Cincinnati Ave. The circus will stage a parade Saturday morning. It is coming here from Wilmington.

The Theatre

One of Lon Chaney's earliest major roles, which is also held to be among his greatest, is the dual part he plays in the Universal-Jewel production, "Outside the Law," in which Priscilla Dean is the star. This astounding crook melodrama, which enjoyed an enviable success a few years ago, and has recently been revived for local showing comes to the Bijou Theater, Friday.

In addition to Priscilla Dean and Lon Chaney, the cast includes Ralph Lewis, Wheeler Oakman, E. A. Warren, Stanley Geothals, Melbourne MacDowell and Wilton Taylor.

"Big husky heroes, All-American football stars shook before the camera and shivered so they couldn't smile" was the report of newspapermen who reviewed thousands of feet of film of the four hundred and sixty-six college men selected from thirty-seven of the leading American universities, in an effort to pick ten of the finest types of college men for the screen.

Ten outstanding men were selected and the feature of the tests was the real, honest timidity of the boys. There was no evidence of conceit about any of the winners. In addition to having photographic qualities, they had fine ideals and human sympathy, an eager progressive spirit that will be a real aid in the movies.

Then ten men selected are: John Westwood, Princeton; Richard M. Clendenin, U. of Cal.; Leland F. Wilcox and Thomas K. Denton, Michigan; John Vancleve Morris, Purdue; Stuart Clayton Knox, Yale; Edward E. Karges and Warner Grahm Smoot from Northwestern; John Howland Stambaugh, Chicago; and Daniel C. Cassidy from Georgia Tech., who will go to California at the close of school for work in the movies.

Four famous football captains: Charlie Moeser of Princeton, Fred Pickard of Alabama, John Roberts of Pittsburgh, and Wally Marks of Chicago, were screened, as well as four All-American; Kelley of Montana, Shopkey of Stanford, Broda of Brown, and Pickhard of Alabama. More than forty crew, baseball, tennis, swimming and polo stars were also filmed at the thirty-seven schools.

The ten winners will be filmed in various roles with Colleen Moore, Harry Langdon, Milton Sills, Richard Barthelmess and other First National stars at Burbank, California, this summer.

JUNIOR BUSINESS MEN CONTINUE LEAD IN SOFT BALL LOOP

Junior Business Men made it five in a row and extended their lead in the Xenia Playground League to two and one-half games, by defeating Central High School 20 to 11 in a hectic soft ball contest at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday night.

The game was closely contested for six innings but the winners stepped out with a seven-run scoring spree in the seventh inning to clinch the contest.

The Junior Business Men staked themselves to a five-run lead in the first inning but Central managed to tie it up at 7 to 7 in the fourth. The business men then took the lead in the fifth and were never headed.

A home run by Carl Highley in the first inning was the only four base smash of the game.

Doak and Rakoff formed Central's battery with Frame pitching and J. McCurran behind the plate for the winners.

Boy Scouts will meet the cellar-dwelling Kiwanis Club Friday night.

J. B. M. lineup: Purdom, rf-2b; Frame, p; J. McCurran, c; Patterson, ss; Highley, 1b; Hyman, 2b-1b; Prugh, 3b; Eckerle, lf; F. McCurran, cf.

Central lineup: Haverstick, ss; Henrie, 3b; Doak, p; Cramer, lf; Marshall, cf; Morton, 1b; Higgins, 2b; Rakoff, c; Creswell, rf; F. Smith, rf.

FIFTY TWO WILL GRADUATE AT ANTIOCH COLLEGE JUNE 25

President Arthur E. Morgan will be the principal speaker at the Antioch College commencement exercises Saturday morning, June 25 at 10 o'clock when fifty-two undergraduates received their diplomas.

The week of June 19 will be crowded with commencement activities opening with the senior vespers on the college campus Sunday at 7 p. m., with the Rev. Hugh I. Evans, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, in charge.

Antioch Pioneers Society will meet in the college assembly hall Wednesday, June 22 at 8 p. m., and the junior prom is scheduled for 9 o'clock Thursday evening, June 23 in Kelley Hall.

Activities Friday, June 24, will begin with a picnic in Antioch Glen from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., with the president's reception set for from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock. Between 5 and 6 p. m. the alumni business meeting will be held and the alumni banquet between 6 and 9 o'clock. Following the banquet, the senior class play, "Horace Mann," will be presented on the college steps.

Collation on the campus at 12 o'clock noon, will immediately follow the graduation exercises Saturday morning, June 25. In the afternoon the closing commencement day feature will be a baseball game between the college varsity and the alumni, scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Following is a list of Antioch College graduates this year:

Archie Allardyce, Saginaw, Mich.; Harold Clayton Atkiss, Philadelphia, Pa; Carl Wimler Boese, Dayton, O.; Irving Cannon, Yellow Springs; Constance Ching-Er Chang, Chingju, Shanghai, China; Bennett Chapple, Middletown, O.; Elizabeth Clarke, Berkeley, Calif.; Jean Collier, Denver, Colo.; Lucille Corry, Yellow Springs; Charles Dougherty, Detroit, Mich.; Franklin Drivness, Winona, Minn.; Dorothy Clara Fay, Boston, Mass.; Gordon Fenstermaker, Slatington, Pa.; John Robert Fierer, Homestead, Pa.; William Filene, Newtonville, Mass.; Harry Rundell Finch, Salamanca, N. ARROW SHOE STORE OPENED TO PATRONS HERE ON THURSDAY

Exterior and interior improvements to the room formerly occupied by Moser's shoe store, S. Detroit St., weer remarked by patrons when the new Arrow Shoe Co., opened its doors in the same room Thursday.

Exterior improvements include a new vestibule front and attractive display windows and installation of a new electric sign. Redecorating and rearrangement of fixtures marked important changes in the interior.

The interior has been finished in light gray, and new arrangements to take advantage of the light, add to the attractiveness. The salesroom has been shortened, allowing for an extension of the reserve stock room in the rear, and the basement department has been done away with.

Patrons visiting the store at the opening found the salesroom attractively decorated in potted palms and cut flowers in baskets, some the gift of well-wishers. Guy Hutslar, who was associated with Adolph Moser in the former store, is manager of the new store in which Mr. Moser retains his interest. Under the new business policy men's, women's and children's shoes will be handled only at popular prices. The sales staff of the Moser store has been retained.

The new store is an attractive addition to Xenia's business section.

WILL PAINT STANDS AT FAIR GROUNDS

Minor improvements at the Xenia Fairgrounds were decided upon by the fair board after an inspection and meeting on the grounds Wednesday.

Board officials have concluded to paint the new grandstand, under construction, and the judges stand, white. The judges' stand will also undergo improvements designed to place it in good condition, which may necessitate some re-flooring work.

The location of the stand will not be changed. The new grandstand is rapidly nearing completion as construction work is being pushed forward rapidly.

Rheumatism

Get this relief at once. German and American science has produced Su-thol Tablets which bring quick, safe amazing benefits.

This is one of many who have been helped: "I certainly can recommend Su-thol Tablets for rheumatism, as I suffered for weeks before taking them. Had electric treatments for two months and finally got so bad was not able to walk at all. I took one box of Su-thol and my rheumatism was gone. Also took your Casca-Royal Pills to regulate the bowels. Have never felt so well in my life and I recommended your medicines to my friends. Truly yours, Mrs. Josephine Howard, 332 Blandina St, Utica, N. Y."

The cost is trivial, the results assured. Six 25c tubes in each $1.00 package at leading drug stores.

Do You Have These Symptoms

Folks Near or Past Forty Should Watch These Danger Signs

Dizziness, headaches, shortness of breath, distress after eating, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness and nights of restless misery caused by bad dreams or inability to sleep—these are some of "The Danger Signals" indicating hepatic torpidity, gall stones or gall bladder inflammation.

Thousands of lives have been wrecked and other thousands made thoroughly miserable — because they did not heed these warning signs in time. Women in their "Forties" are particularly liable to these troubles and hundreds who think they have high blood pressure are simply suffering from hepatic torpidity or gall bladder inflammation.

Don't take a chance on gall stones and don't let your system get filled with poison that may cause months or even years of miserable ill health. At the very first warning sign ask Sayre's Drug Store or any other good druggist for "Klax-Ko" tablets and be assured of swift and positive relief or your money promptly refunded. Klax-Ko tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds who thought they had some dangerous internal trouble—and in many instances have saved the pain and expense of an operation for gall stones. Ten days use will convince you of their honest value in your particular case. Try them today!

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car

ANNOUNCING

"HIGH PRESSURE SAM"

A New Comic Strip Serial By "Swan"

GEORGE SWANSON,
Better Known As "Swan"

"SWAN", WHOSE REAL NAME IS GEORGE SWANSON, IS THE CREATOR OF THE WELL KNOWN COMIC STRIP "SALESMAN SAM". IN HIS NEW COMIC HE USES THE SAME CHARACTERS.

No comic in the country has provoked more mirth than the dynamic but dumb salesman, originated and created by "Swan."

Swan's Samuel is a young man of great imagination and ideas, one far-fetched, the other usually wrong.

Sam is in love, seriously in love, and in love with a very attractive and practical 1927 model.

She adores Sam, but love without money looks bad to her. She doesn't mind the cottage, but it must have something within its walls, other than a love-sick swain.

Contrary to the general opinion, the girl believes Sam has something else between his eyes than space and that if she can get some coordination between Sam's brain and his tongue, Sam, home and future will be assured.

$2,000 IS REQUIRED

to win her. Sam, "rarin' to go," has more ideas about getting that $2,000 quickly than a watermelon has seeds.

THESE ARE THE ANSWERS TO THE QUESTIONS ON PAGE FOUR

1. Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the German Zeppelin works, has announced that the L. Z. 127, now under construction, will circle the world in 300 hours in 1928.

2. James Clarkson Gillmore, the last commodore in the United States navy to fly his flag before that rank became extinct, died in Washington, June 14.

3. Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, has promised to reduce the Army of Occupation at the Rhineland bridgeheads to 40,000 men (a reduction of 15,000.)

4. Mexico is about to conclude peace with the Yaqui Indians, who have been in revolt for ten months. The Indians will not be permitted to remain in the Bacatete mountains, but will be given lands in some other part of Mexico.

5. The British foreign office has refused passports to six children by British communists to visit Russia as the guests of the Moscow Young Pioneers.

6. Houdini's death, on Oct. 30, 1926, according to the insurance company which has just paid a claim to his widow, followed a week after he had challenged a McGill university student in Montreal to strike him a hard blow. He did this to prove his excellent physical condition.

WILE SAYS:

clerk in the consulate-general at Cairo, and since then has served in various capacities at Mexico City, Petrograd, Berlin, Vienna, Copenhagen and Berne. Grew was secretary-general of the American delegation at the Paris peace conference; was afterwards minister to Denmark and Switzerland, and functioned as American envoy at the preliminary meetings on reduction of armaments in Geneva and Paris. In 1923 Grew concluded the treaty with Turkey, which now threatens to bulk so conspicuously in connection with his ambassadorial fortunes. As undersecretary of state, Grew was at Secretary Hughes' right hand for a year, and for the past two years he has been Secretary Kellogg's chief adjutant.

Meritorious as Grew's services—and those of a score or more of our other "career diplomats"—have been, it's exactly their type that Vice President Dawes is shooting at. General Dawes holds that these men have either served abroad so long, or become so hidebound in their point of view through strictly technical training for diplomacy, that they are out of touch with American public sentiment. The vice president is especially opposed to the system of promoting "career men" on the seniority basis. He asserts that "seniority in promotion ruins the effectiveness of a peace-time army when thrust into war." By the same token, Dawes argues, American interests in a grave emergency might be fatally jeopardized by "career diplomats" entrusted with responsibility simply because they rose to their places on the seniority ladder.

The vice president did not mention it at St. Louis, but between the lines of his address was a plain protest against the administration's failure to send "big men" to this month's naval conference at Geneva. That international meeting, to which Great Britain and Japan are dispatching outstanding statesmen, is the kind of a gathering at which, in the vice president's estimation, Uncle Sam should have his very best "minds." General Dawes is perhaps under the impression that if mere "career diplomats"—instead of himself, Owen D. Young and Henry M. Robinson—had been assigned the task of settling the German reparations problem in 1924, it might still be unsolved. Businessmen, not "career men" of the foreign service, are obviously, in Dawes' opinion, the most qualified to negotiate those underlying economic issues which are nowadays the bedrock of international relations.

There's a lot to be said on the other side of the question. Diplomacy is often a case of psychology. One set of negotiators has to know, from every angle, the strong and the weak points of the negotiators on the other side of the table. Knowledge on these scores is sometimes just the feather which turns the scales from defeat into victory. At Geneva, when the naval conference is on, Ambassador Gibson's intimate acquaintance with the personalities, backgrounds and viewpoints of the British and Japanese delegates will be of immense value. Mr. Gibson, through long residence in Europe, knows thoroughly the currents and cross-currents of international politics, and will be able to gauge them from occasion to occasion. No merely "big man" from America could possibly be in possession of this information.

Professional politicians long have disliked the "career diplomat" idea. It delivered a knockout blow to the ancient spoils system. In days of old, ministerships and ambassadorships were the plums party leaders dealt in most profitably when sinews of war were needed for campaign purposes.

"SICK-HEADACHES ?"

Torturing, maddening! Most always trace them to a lazy liver, constipation and a sour-sick stomach. Poison of fermented foods retained, instead of passing, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues, it causes congestion and that acute, sickening pain.

Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills quickly and surely remove the cause by stimulating the liver, toning up the bowel-nerves, making the poison-ferments move on and out, thus purifying the blood and curing the headaches. The effect is almost instantaneous.

Women, because of their sensitive organism are especially prone to periodical headaches, should not suffer if a drugstore is nearby—for Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills have helped millions during the past 25 years. Non-secret formula, small, sweet, prompt and "Better Than Castor Oil." Two sizes 15c—30c.

Regain Health this Way

There is a right way to regain health—if you are anemic, weak, nervous and run-down, because of thin, watery blood and deficient gland activity.

The way is easy, pleasant, prompt. It is scientific, for it deals with supplying the elements needed by the system. The method has been used successfully 15 years. The use of Cadomene Tablets has grown to over one million a week, by users telling others how effective the method is. There are people in your own circle who have regained lost health. Your doctor or druggist can tell you of "the miracle-like" recoveries of thin, anemic, weak, nervous-run-down folks.

Take from your food all calcium, phosphorus, iron and magnesium—and you wither and die. Reduce the amount your blood and glands should have, and you soon become afflicted with Nerve Trouble, Gland Trouble, Anemia, Weakness, Digestive Disorders, Infected Teeth, Headaches, Lowered Vitality, Fatigue, a tendency to have "colds" frequently and a general lethargy of mind and body.

The "Balance" or level of your system is upset, due to modern methods of preparing foods from which vital elements have been taken. Cadomene gives back this lost balance promptly. Six to eight weeks' use is time enough to produce a delightful buoyancy of spirit and reserve strength. Simply take three to six tablets daily as per directions.

Cadomene Tablets is not a cheap "catch penny tonic", but an efficient enricher of the blood and a potent strength-inducing agent. Go, try it now. Learn that you can be well and strong. Druggists everywhere sell Cadomene on a guarantee of delightful satisfaction or money back.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

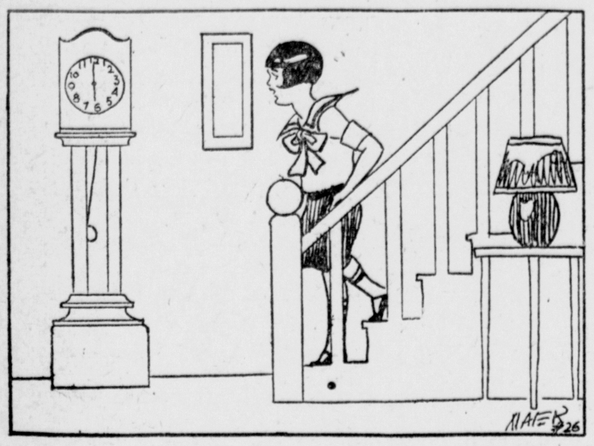

The Rovin' Ritzies
By Flo Frederick

Patsy can scarcely go to sleep
Dreaming of ponds, cool and deep!

The morning sun was just peeping through the clouds when Patsy jumped out of bed and started getting dressed. She had been so excited the night before she could hardly go to sleep, and now she was getting up earlier than any other time in her life except Christmas. It almost seemed like Christmas, everything was so quiet and mysterious as she tiptoed down the hall. As she passed Marty's room she chuckled to herself, for her brother was snoring loud and lustily in spite of the fact that he had declared that he would be the first one up to look at the fish pond.

When Patsy thought of the fish pond she could hardly wait until she reached the back yard, but she must go carefully, so as not to wake up mother and father, and so she tip-toed downstairs and out through the dining room.

Would the pond that they had worked so hard on be filled to the top with nice clear water, or would it have all seeped out in the night? It would really hold water, what fun they would have with the pretty gold fish swimming about among the water lily that mother had promised! She decided that she would place mossy stones about the edge, a clump of forget-me-nots and——

Patsy's plans were brought to a sudden stop when she at last came face to face with the pond. Oh, it couldn't be true! It would be too mean to have it turn out this way!

She rubbed her eyes to make sure that she wasn't asleep and just having a bad dream, but there was no use trying to fool herself. She knew that she was wide awake and that the pond was leaking water.

To be sure it was more than half filled with water, but that would be expected with so much rain the last few days, but not before. No, there was no doubt about it, the pond was slowly leaking which meant that it couldn't be a home for the gold fish. What would the poor things do in dry weather? They couldn't take a chance on a leaky pond. There was nothing for it but forget all about her wonderful plans for a woodsy pond.

It was a weary little Patsy that trudged back to bed. It was almost as bad as getting up on Christmas morning and finding no Santa Claus or Christmas tree by the fireplace.

Marty went through the same disappointing discovery when his mother's calling brought him to his senses and the realization that he had intended to get up very early.

They were a very silent and disappointed pair as they ate their breakfast and trudged off to school.

At recess time the twins and Betty Ann came running to hear the news about the pond, and could not help feeling blue about this unexpected turn of things. The five Ritzies were sitting on the stone steps of the school house, looking like a very discouraged group when Bill Roscoe, the newest Ritzie club member, approached and asked what was troubling them.

Bill was a Ritzie and had a right to know, and so Marty told him all about their high expectations for the outdoor fish pond and this sudden blow to their plans. Living on the other side of town, Bill did not get over to the Collins' yard so often and this was his first knowledge of the fish pond plans.

He offered no comment after Marty finished his tale and the other Ritzies were about to decide that he didn't seem much interested in their club affairs when he asked a most unexpected question.

"Did you say that your pond was close to the garage?"

"Why, yes," answered the surprised Marty. "What difference does that make? That spot had the most clay in it."

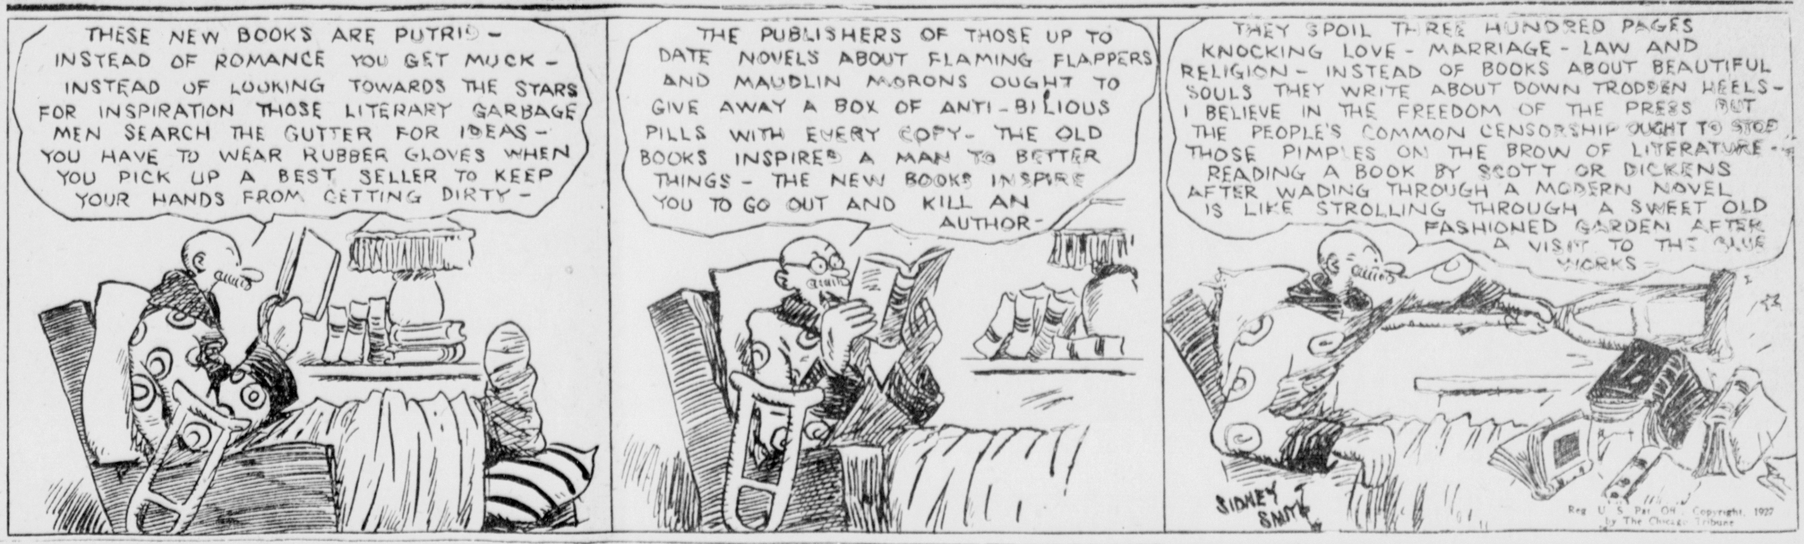

"It may not be any good," answered Bill, quietly, "but I've got an idea. I'll meet you after school and go up and have a look at the pond."

As the bell rang, bringing the recess period to an end, the Ritzies who had tried to make a pond and failed, could not help wondering when they would ever really learn to know their fellow club member. Bill was always so calm about things, and yet it seemed that there was nothing that he couldn't do. Every day they felt prouder of their new Ritzie.

How Bill's idea in saving the fish pond works out will be told in tomorrow's story. Don't miss it!

GASOLINE FILLING STATION OWNERS TO GIVE GOOD MEASURE

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—Owners of gasoline filling stations in Ohio will "toe the line" in measuring out the right amount of gas after June 30, or there will be some fines to pay, according to state weights and measures officials here.

Not that officials are not already doing everything they can to see that motorists in the Buckeye state get their money's worth, but they are just beginning to bear down on a four year old law which heretofore has been almost unheeded by the filling stations, the officers say.

The law, which state officials will use as their main weapon in fighting the short measures, carries with it certain specifications that will make the pumps "fool proof" if heeded by the pump manufacturers and oil companies.

A few of the requirements for pumps installed before Dec. 20, 1926, which will be rigidly enforced are:

The bowl is to be filled at time of delivery.

It is unlawful to operate pump unless safety device is sealed open, with proper added wording or sign to denote open position.

All signs must be conspicuous and placed so that they can be read from a reasonable angle and letters be of a different color than the sign itself.

The sight glass or its equivalent must be provided on all devices where the customer cannot see the complete delivery which includes meters and blind pumps and so placed as to show the customer the flow of gas to the car and any delivery or drainage line to storage.

Visible pumps constructed so that gas goes quickly to car and to storage at the same time when adjustable tube is lowered were eliminated Dec. 20, 1926. Those installed before that date must be made as safe as possible by proper required attachments.

State officials have found the greatest amount of shortages in pumps with the glass bowls which are so equipped that the gasoline can be released from the bowl and will run through the tube to the auto and also into the storage tank at the same time.

A new safety device has been manufactured by pump companies following the specifications made by the state department, and will be used on most pumps with the glass bowl. It is a lever which when closed and sealed makes it impossible for the gasoline to run from the bowl back into the storage tank. The only way gas can be allowed to run back to the storage tank from the bowl will be by breaking the seal and turning the lever.

The law and specifications have never been rigidly enforced, state officials explained, because difficulty was found in persuading the pump companies to manufacture new parts or revamp their models. Several pump companies now have met the requirements after a four year fight and it will now be necessary for the oil companies to purchase new pumps or change the old pump equipment.

BELLBROOK

Deputy Auditor James Curlett was in town Friday testing scales.

Mrs. John Hess' will was probated Thursday.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the M. E. Church next Sunday.

Charlie Mills celebrated his seventy-second birthday last Monday at his place of business, hammering iron and shoeing horses.

J. L. Myers is improving his property on E. Franklin St., by the addition of a sidewalk.

C. C. Austin is the only remaining soldier now living here who enlisted from Sugarcreek Twp., for service in the Civil War.

It is reported that there was two inches of rain-fall here on Monday night.

Thomas Van Camp and other members of the family were in Xenia last Monday on legal business.

Oliver Willis is working in Dayton.

Adrian Fiorini has returned home from Chicago.

Rev. Arthur Griffes has a position in Dayton.

Harry Watson sold two police pups during the past week.

Russell Stockman, who has been playing in the Dayton Police team of the Buckeye League, left this week for Florida where he will become a member of the Southern League.

W. H. Sidenstricker was home for a short time this week.

The first contest between Bellbrook and Osborn took place at Osborn last Sunday, the Bellbrook club winning the opening game by a score of 5 to 3. The second game was taken by Osborn in the first half of the ninth inning when the first and only score found its way to the record. It goes without saying that each member in the two clubs played a fine article of ball. Bellbrook will meet Xenia on the latter's diamond next Sunday for a first setto between the two teams.

Ex-Mayor Elmer Wetzel was the victim of a well-planned birthday surprise on last Thursday evening when about thirty of his Zimmermanville friends rushed in upon him as he was quietly amputating his whiskers and hair in his shaving parlor. Mr. Wetzel was at once notified that he had reached his 42nd milestone in life's journey, and was courteously invited to "cease from his labors" and join them. The evening was pleasantly spent in a good social way with music and other blissful features preceded by a hearty indulgence in ice cream, cake and other seasonable refreshments. Those present to wish Mr. Wetzel many more happy birthdays, and to enjoy the occasion were: Robert Ferguson and family, Lewis Stewart and two sons, Marcus and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Houston and son Raymond, Chas. Stewart and son Ellsworth, Harry Haverstick and daughter Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Macher, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Snyder, George Haverstick, Cash Moore, Russell Zimmerman, Chas. Wetzel, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Koogler, Miss Lizzie Haverstick, and Mrs. Katie Glotfelter.

My Son's Sweethearts

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natlee Jones. Then he becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's, and finds out he is falling in love with her.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because America enters the World war.

Phil's regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and Phil is wounded while on a dangerous mission. Rod is killed trying to save his friend, and Phil receives the croix de guerre for bravery.

While recovering in the south of France, armistice is declared and Phil is sent to Coblenz, Germany. Meeting certain requirements, he is awarded a scholarship in a French university, and returns to Paris.

His mother, not having heard from him for months, decides to go to France to hunt him, and Major Aukland, who is devoted to Anne Tracy, accompanies her. Unexpectedly she comes face to face with her son. The shock proves a great strain on them both, and they soon part—Phil to go to his room and Mrs. Tracy to start on a shopping spree.

Phil comes to breakfast with his mother the next morning and they start to tell each other "all about it."

Here the story further unfolds—

"Tell me about Natlee, Mother."

CHAPTER XLIV

TALKING OVER NATLEE

"I THINK that perhaps, son, you have more to tell than I," said Anne Huntington Tracy. "You are too young to show the scars of war, dearest."

Phillip Tracy gave a little nervous shudder which his mother was quick to interpret.

"Not so much happened to me except my waiting and waiting for you. Where shall I begin?"

"Tell me about Natlee, Mother."

"To tell the truth, Phillip, I don't know much about Natlee. I never did know very much about her. I could never get near to her someway."

"She always sensed that you did not like her, Mum."

"Perhaps, Phillip," confessed his mother, "I was always a little jealous of her." As she said this, Mrs. Tracy bent over and lightly kissed the tousled brown head that was lying in her lap.

"You had no need to be jealous of her, dear. She always had the greatest admiration for you and a great desire to please you at all times. Natlee is the finest and sweetest girl I have ever known, Mother mine."

"It is because I have always known that, that I have been afraid of her. Phillip, I have found out since you have been away from me that I was very selfish about you. I wanted you to love me best of all the world, dear.

"We women always want our sons to love us best; we never seem to understand that some girl will come into their lives as we came into the lives of their fathers and we will no more be first in their hearts.

"I presume, dear, that I was never afraid of you really falling in love with any other girl but Natlee. After you had gone we did see more of each other for a while, but always there was a constraint between us.

"She accused me, that morning she came to see me after you had enlisted, of giving my consent to your going because I would rather see you dead, if need be, than married to her."

"Natlee did not say that, Mother, did she?" asked Phil, suddenly sitting up and turning so that he could look at her.

"I think so, dear. I remember that morning very well and I am sure she said these words, 'I have always loved Wynne ever since we were little children. I am not ashamed to tell you this, for today I have a feeling of tenderness toward him that I expect is a part of the maternal instinct born in all girls. That is the reason why I have always taken him back when he has returned to me; that is the reason I shall always be waiting for him'."

Phil clasped his mother's hand with a grip that hurt.

"Then she added: 'I have known since I was 15 that you did not want Wynne to marry me, but I hoped that in time you would see I was perhaps better for him than any other girl he knew. However, after that night of the party I knew it was not to be. I knew that although you would never acknowledge it to yourself, you would do almost anything to separate us.' Of course you can see, Phillip, how this agitated me, for I had to admit that she was right.

"PERHAPS you think it is common for me to talk so plainly about your son to you,' she continued. 'I shall never do it again, and I should not have done it now, if I did not feel that I am in danger of losing him forever.' And then, Phillip, she said this strange thing: 'I love Wynne; I will never love any one else, and I understand him better than any other person in the world, with the possible exception of Rodney Maxwell.'

"We talked quite a while after that, Phillip, for I was a little touched because she said I did not understand you.

"Finally she said: 'Mrs. Tracy, you would not have given your consent to Wynne's enlisting if you had not rather seen him dead than married to me. You are determined that I shall lose him'."

Anne Tracy stopped for a moment and Phil asked, "What did you say to that?"

"I put my arm about her shoulders and answered: 'No, Natlee, I think I let him go to save him for you'."

There was another pregnant silence and then Phil said: "Perhaps it would have been better if you had let us marry before I came away."

"Would you have done that, son, even if I had raised no objections?"

"Perhaps not at that time, but I would have done so any time before—" he hesitated, and then brought out the words—"the party."

Mrs. Tracy blushed. She knew that Phil was thinking of Lyra Hilliard. She would have liked to have denounced her, but she did not know how to do so.

Phil also would have liked to have told his mother about her friend, and his momentary infatuation for her. Instead, he said, "Mother, would you be very unhappy if we made our home in France?"

Mrs. Tracy made such a gesture of surprise that Phil had to take his head from her knee.

"What do you mean, Phillip? Surely you have not become so in love with Paris in a month that you want to give up your own country and live over here! Don't you know that even if I did—for love of you—forsake my home and came to this alien land, Natlee would never do so."

"I do not expect her to do so. I had a letter from Natlee a few days before the armistice in which she told me all about Jerry Kenyon. It was a strange letter, but I gained from it that at last Natlee had grown tired of being 'always waiting for me,' and that she was on the point of accepting a better and more stable man. The letter made me very unhappy for a time, and I went up into the Argonne, hoping that from there I would 'go west'; my life seemed so futile.

"SOMETHING inside of me made me carry on. Although I was half-sick and completely discouraged, that something kept me alive until after the armistice, when at Le Blanc I read of the chance—the remote chance—by which I might come to Paris as a student of the Sorbonne. I am afraid I told a good many lies to get that scholarship, but perhaps the Good God knew that if it were not given to me I would never again be worth anything in this world.

"Anyway, the offer did come to me, and it brought with it another chance for happiness."

Anne Tracy stirred, and Phillip got up and stood before her. She was glad of that, because she was afraid he would feel that she was trembling.

"There are wonderful openings for a young man, Mother, with a little money over here. I know that I will be happier in France."

"Have you written this to Natlee, Phil?"

"Not yet, but I did answer her letter and told her that I could see she had grown tired of waiting and that as I did not know when I should go back to the States, it would not be fair to her to be kept waiting for a man who, with gas, shell shock and wounds, could not measure up to Jerry Kenyon or any of the others who stayed at home."

"Phillip, did you expect Natlee to accept that excuse?"

"Yes. Why not? It was the truth."

"Dear, don't lie to yourself. It was only half the truth. Tell me the whole truth. What is her name?"

Instead of answering directly, Phillip said, "Do you know we have not had breakfast? I'm beastly hungry."

Anne Tracy started to pull the bell cord which was beside her. She had arranged for breakfast at 10 o'clock. Phillip had come earlier.

Before she did so, there was a tapping at her door, and the man brought in the ample breakfast she had ordered the evening before.

While the waiter was arranging it on the table, she slipped into her dressing room and put on a street gown. When she came out she found Phil gloating over the table.

"Good heavens, Mum! Do you want to spend all your money in one place and at one time?" he asked with a smile.

Six strawberries as large as egg plums, from Nice, each one on its little bed of leaves; beside them a dish of Normandy clotted cream, wonderful brioche, unsalted butter, scrambled eggs and coffee with cream and sugar.

Seating his mother quickly, Phil tried to give her three of the strawberries, but she would take only two, after much persuasion.

"I want this, our first breakfast together after the war, to be a happy memory all your life long."

"You'll get your wish, young lady," Phil assured his mother, calling her the name he did at times when he was most pleased at some extravagant thing she had done for him.

Both of them felt better when they settled back with the second cup of coffee and a cigaret. It was then that Anne Tracy asked her son the same question he had asked her an hour ago.

"Tell me all about it, son."

(TO BE CONTINUED)
